Global Overview:

United States:

US markets closed today's session with positive results, affected by the signing of the phase one trade agreement between the US and China. The president of US, Donald Trump, and Chinese Deputy Prime Minister Liu signed the long-awaited preliminary agreement in Washington. This agreement details greater Chinese purchases of US products, provisions to stop forced technology transfers along with theft of intellectual property. However, what is more significant is that the agreement will now calm the fears and concerns of investors of an escalation of the commercial conflict. Thus, agents can focus on corporate profits and recent economic data. However, some analysts believe that new conflicts will arise with other business partners, expecting that the Trump administration is watching Europe for its next round of tariffs. In addition, the technology industry in the US continues under uncertainty, without a clear proposition on the status of Huawei suppliers and the company itself, blacklisted for alleged cyber espionage. In this way, the S&P 500 +0.19%, Dow Jones Industrial +0.31% and NASDAQ Composite +0.08% ended up with positive variations.

Europe:

The European market ends today's session with a positive variation of its main index, Euro Stoxx 50, (+0.10%). In addition, the sectors that most influenced the rise of this index were, public services (+1.37%) and Energy (+0.43%). Likewise, the best performers of the day were Kering SA (+9.8%) and Safran SA (+1.5%). On the other hand, the president of the United States, Donald Trump, issued a private threat to European countries on the imposition of a 25% tariff on cars in case they did not activate the dispute resolution mechanism of the 2015 nuclear agreement. According to the newspaper "The Washington Post" it has been confirmed that the threat came days after Germany, France and the United Kingdom resorted to this mechanism, without clarifying whether the warning influenced the decision. The governments of the countries that signed the agreement, decided on Tuesday to bring Iran to the aforementioned mechanism for the alleged breach of the commitments acquired, which could result in the reimposition of sanctions. According to Iranian President Hassan Rohani, he has suggested that the European military could be in danger in the East.

Asia:

US markets ended the day in positive territory, while solid economic data are published and large quarterly earnings continue. In addition, the outcome of the signing of the phase one trade agreement filled the markets with optimism. All this helped the shares reach record levels. Regarding economic data, weekly unemployment fell by 10,000 to 204,000, being considered a positive surprise compared to the Reuters estimate of 216,000. Likewise, quarterly earnings better than expected from Morgan Stanley contributed to raising market sentiment, with a strong start to the year. Thus, Morgan Stanley rose +6.61% thanks to these results in its areas of investment management, wealth management and commerce. It is expected that the shares at record highs are good enough to justify the high market valuation. In the next session, the reports on consumer sentiment will come out. In this way, the S&P 500 +0.84%, Dow Jones Industrial +0.92% and NASDAQ Composite +1.06% ended up with positive variations. On the other hand, commodities, gold fell -0.097% and WTI Crude oil closed upwards +1.35%.
