Global Overview

Asia: Asian markets closed trading today negatively as indexes succumb to global pressure as concerns about the pandemic resurface. Shares succumbed to widespread global selling pressure following the resurgence of coronavirus infections and the spectre of a slowdown in nascent economic recoveries around the world following comments from the FED's vice president who assured that further fiscal boost would be needed to achieve the inflationary goal of 2%. In corporate news, Japan's Sumitomo Mitsui Trust fell - 3.1%, hit by concerns about reputational damage after the company made mistakes in the vote-counting of shareholders' meetings it manages. On the other hand, fears also dragged world oil prices, with Australia's Beach Energy -5.71% and Oil Search -3.87% leading the falls among the country's energy stocks. Top gas producer Woodside Petroleum would also fall -1.96%. Thus, the main indexes Nikkei 225 -1.11%, Hang Seng -1.82%, ASX 200 -0.81%, CSI 300 -1.92% and Shanghai Composite -1.72% closed lower.

Europe: European markets ended trading with negative returns, amid a resurgence of COVID-19 cases that discouraged market participants. The chances of an economic recovery after the pandemic are increasingly remote, while the number of infected rises. In the UK, daily reported cases grew by a quarter, according to CNBC. Specifically, 6178 cases were reported, representing an increase of 1,252 since Tuesday. On the other hand, Rishi Sunak, the country's finance minister, unveiled a new set of measures to combat unemployment, which would replace the license program that expires the following month. In Germany, Ministers Peter Altmaier and Heiko Maas are in quarantine after it was verified that people close to them tested positive for COVID-19. On the equities front, the Norwegian hydrogen company Nel -11% was affected by the collapse of Nikola in the US market that has impacted on green energy shares. Thus, the STOXX 600 -1.02%, FTSE 100 -1.3%, CAC 40 -0.83%, FTSE MIB -0.12% and DAX -0.29% finished lower, among other indexes.

United States: US markets ended today's session with positive returns, supported by data on the increase in sales of new homes that reached a high of 14 years, which promoted the feeling of economic recovery despite an increase in applications for unemployment at 870,000 according to the US Department of Labor. The technology sector sustained the country's returns with Apple Inc + 0.72%, Amazon.com Inc + 0.66%, Nvidia Corp + 1.85%, and Facebook Inc + 0.20%. Also, another important headline to consider is that a new 2.4 billion dollars' aid package for the coronavirus has begun to be prepared by Democratic legislators, which also sustained American investments. In corporate actions, the television and newspaper company, E.W. Scripps Co. had an increase of + 7.64% by buying ION Media for 2.65 million dollars, a purchase in which Warren Buffet participated. In contrast, Penn National Gaming Inc fell -7.27% after announcing an initial public offering of 14 million shares. In conclusion, the main indexes S&P 500 +0.30%, DJIA +0.20% and NASDAQ +0.37% closed higher.
