Global Overview

United States:

The US stock market closed with positive results among its main indices. The negotiations in the market were somewhat moderate as investors focused their attention on the forthcoming FED statement, which is expected to announce an increase in the interest rate, as well as a more aggressive path towards the normalization of the monetary policy. Energy stocks increased the most during the day, with an increase of 0.9% in the sector, advancing with a 2.3% increase in the price of US crude oil futures. This is thanks to the tension that exists between Iran and Saudi Arabia, along with the downward expectations of the price of crude oil in Venezuela, however, if the number of drilling in the United States increases, it could compromise the price of crude oil. In the future. On the other hand, shares of the technology sector fell, such as Facebook that extended its losses yesterday. There were also rumors about the possibility of a commercial war, as it is expected that on Friday, President Trump announced that he would hit China with $ 60 billion in annual tariffs. As for the dollar, it moved strongly upward given the global context.

Europe:

The European stock market finished the day with results among its main indices. In news from England, the stock price remained higher after the inflation data for February was published. The Office of National Statistics said that inflation of consumer prices increased by 3% 2.7%. This decrease is due to the fall in the price of oil, the reduction in the price of transport services and the increase in the number registered a year ago in food prices. In turn, the pound fell after the inflation data, in a more detailed picture, a weaker pound can help the actions of the English index (FTSE 100), since in 75% of the income of the components of the index is done abroad. Finally in the business news, Fenner measures around 25%, since the manufacturer of the products is in an agreement, announced on Monday evening, the Compagnie Generale des Etablissements Michelin in an offer valuing Fenner at £ 1.2 billion pounds.

Asia:

The Asian stock market closed the day with positive returns, with the exception of the Japanese benchmark index "Nikkei 225". In Japan, technology stocks followed the bearish trend of their US counterparts. In addition, Japanese investors prepare for the public holiday in Japan. Traders said another factor that contained Tuesday's losses was the anticipation that the Bank of Japan was again buying exchange-traded funds to support the market. The central bank bought 73.5 trillion yen ($ 691.70 million) of ETF yesterday. The Asian stocks managed to recover after the fall in technology stocks yesterday. Experts report that the market will remain volatile on the following days for the new meeting of the Federal Open Market Committee, in which the Fed is expected to raise US interest rates. Regarding the companies, Baidu Inc. fell 3.6% on Monday, which represents a significant decrease. Baidu is one of the companies that tries to take the technology to China. Also, Largan Precision 3008, a manufacturer of camera equipment that sells used lenses for motor cars in Taiwan, fell 3.3% today. On the other hand, the funds that follow the MSCI Emerging Markets Index, which gives a 27% weighting to technology companies, many of them in China, South Korea and Taiwan, were also sold on Monday.
