Global Overview

United States:

The US stock market ended the session with negative results, due to the losses in the public services, telecommunications and industrial sectors. In business news, the price of luxury home builder, Toll Brothers Inc, fell around -7.42%, due to its latest earnings report, in which 0.02 less dollars per share compared to last year, plus sales were lower than predicted. On the other hand, the British cinema chain, Cineworld, agreed to buy Regal Entertainment Group at a total amount of 3.6 billion dollars, creating the second largest cinema operator in the world, which can compete with AMC Entertainment and other digital companies as Netflix. In economic news, the United States trade deficit increased around 8.6% in October, reaching a maximum of 48.7 billion dollars. In greater detail, this increase was related to higher imports of oil at higher prices, and the insatiable demand of Americans for basic consumer products such as cell phones and HDTVs stimulated imports in the run up to the holiday shopping season. In addition, exports from the United States, meanwhile, were slowed by a large drop in shipments of large passenger aircraft and soybeans.

Europe:

The European stock market closed with negative results among its main indices, reaching its third fall in four sessions. The fall in UK stocks is particularly noteworthy, particularly from the mining stocks that were affected, despite data from China's service sector showing that its activity increased in November. In more detail, investors evaluated pessimistic data on British services according to the purchasing managers' index. This caused part of the gains obtained the previous day to be erased, with the British benchmark FTSE 100 closing at -0.16% compared to + 0.5% on Monday. In addition, Brexit concerns caused sterling to fall against the US dollar, after UK Prime Minister Theresa May and European Commission President Jean-Claude Juncker said on Monday that they did not reach an agreement to take the negotiations to a second stage. On the other hand, the falls in technological stocks weighed in the European region, after the sector suffered setbacks in the session on Monday in the United States. Sales of these shares extended to the Asian and European sessions.

Asia:

The Asian stock market ended today's session with negative results among its main indices. This was due to the fact that the region followed the trend of the Nasdaq index of the United States, which fell by 1.1% the previous day due to a decrease in shares related to the technology sector. According to some analysts, with the advance in the revision of US taxes, investors are changing positions in an attempt to secure profits. Among the news that stood out the most, in South Korea, Samsung fell by 0.2%. But despite having great weight in the country's KOSPI benchmark index, it rose by 0.3% thanks to the fact that steel-related shares maintained their strength. Regarding Japan, the Nikkei 225 stock index fell by 0.2%. Among the stocks that led to this fall were Sharp and Nintendo (-2.1% and -3.2%, respectively). The losses could be deeper, but the US dollar rose versus the Japanese yen, increasing the international competitiveness of exporters (which has a large share of the Japanese market). On the other hand, in Hong Kong, because the Chinese technology giant Tencent (whose shares are the largest in terms of market size) had a decrease of 3.2%, the Hang Seng index fell by 1.1%.
