Global Overview:

United States:

The US market closes with positive results, the S&P 500 ended up for the seventh time in the last nine sessions and for the third consecutive session. The index is in a maximum of three weeks driven by shares of Apple (+1.91%), Amazon (+1.66%), Facebook (+3.25%) and from the industrial sector, which is counting on that the US and China can put an end to the war commercial. The employment report in the US and the dovish statement of the president of the FED jumpstarted the positive results, allowing the index to jump from a minimum of 20 months in which it was near Christmas. China and the US extended the trade talks for a third unscheduled day, which has been perceived as a good sign by the market. The Dow Jones index rose by 1.09% driven by companies such as Boeing (+3.79%) that reported having delivered the record number of 806 aircraft in 2018. In other news, PG&E shares (-7.34%) plummeted after S&P Global removed the investment grade rating by moving the company from BBB- to B, signaling political and regulatory pressure as a trigger. The company faces massive claims unleashed by forest fires with deadly consequences that could be related to the activity of the company.

Europe:

The European market closed with positive returns among its main indices, with the CAC 40 being the most advanced (+1.15%). The DAX rose +0.52%, highlighting that the German industrial production unexpectedly fell 1.9% in November for the third consecutive month; On the other hand, heavy consumer spending benefits from record employment, rising wages and low borrowing costs. The FTSE 100 ended +0.74% amid European and British officials are discussing the possibility of delaying Brexit despite continued opposition from politicians in the UK on an exit agreement guaranteed by Prime Minister Theresa May. However, the price of British homes rose 2.2%, reversing a fall of 1.2% in November and exceeding forecasts according to Reuters (0.2%), but the real estate market remains moderate. Finally, the FTSE MIB (+0.25%) obtained its third consecutive day on the rise. Among the main news items, the European Central Bank indicated that it will not raise interest rates until the middle of 2020 to support the euro zone economy and increase inflation. As data to know, the BCE raised the rates for the last time in 2011, that soon would reduce to historical minimums in 2016 to fight the deflation.

Asia:

Asian markets closed with mixed results. The Nikkei 225 index (+0.82%) closed over the psychological barrier of 20,000 points, driven by the apparent improvement in Sino-US relations, which could trigger a new trade agreement. The fear of a global slowdown led the market to a precipitous fall in the last two weeks, which took the Japanese index to 18948.5 points on December 26, its lowest level since April 2017. The fall of the yen encouraged the rise in shares of exporting companies such as Honda Motor (+3.18%) and Fanuc Corp (+ 3.37%). In other news, Morgan Stanley and UBS Securities upgraded Olympus Corp's rating (+ 8.37%) from neutral to buy, the rise is based on higher earnings projections derived from the medical device segment. Shares in mainland China closed slightly lower, CSI 300 and Shanghai Composite closed at -0.22% and -0.26% respectively. After the 90-day truce was agreed at the end of last year, representatives of both powers meet face to face in Beijing. The Ministry of Foreign Affairs of China said that the efforts to resolve trade frictions with the US are framed under the premise of good faith.
