Global Overview:

United States:

US markets closed lower as market participants abandon again big tech and labor market data is reported. Stocks have continued to perform well in recent weeks, however the months' rally could indicate that stocks are currently highly valued, according to Jason Pride of Glenmede. Pride commented that "we are still in a cautiously bullish environment for the market in general," arguing that "we are going to have a vaccine-induced economic recovery... the flip side of that story is that markets have largely discounted and they have led to overvalued territory...". In addition, Peter Essele of the Commonwealth Financial Network cautioned that "we began to enter an environment where risk became a factor once again and, in particular, inflation risk." In economic data, jobless claims rose to 861,000 the previous week from a past level of 848,000. This can be attributed to likely requests for the temporary shutdown of auto plants following a global shortage of semiconductor chips, according to Reuters. In corporate stocks, Tesla Inc -1.53%, Microsoft Corp -0.17%, Alphabet Inc -0.60%, Facebook Inc -1.53% and Apple Inc -0.86%. Thus, the S&P 500 -0.44%, DJIA -0.38% and NASDAQ -0.72% fell.

Europe:

European markets ended today's session with negative returns, driven by concerns about a faster-than-expected rebound in inflation due to higher commodity prices and a strong euro. Oil prices, which recently reached near pre-pandemic levels due to the production freeze in Texas, have fueled expectations that inflation may rise more than expected in the short term. High inflation carries the double risk of weighing on spending, as well as the earlier-than-expected reduction in support for monetary policy by central banks. "An increase in headline inflation due to technical factors is the worst case scenario for the European Central Bank," said Carsten Brzeski, global head of macroeconomics at ING Germany. In corporate action, financial services company Barclays PLC fell -4.44% as it resumed payments to shareholders after a year-long hiatus due to the COVID-19 pandemic and set targets without warranting numbers. For today's close, the main indices Stoxx 600 -0.82%, FTSE 100 -1.40%, CAC 40 -0.65% and DAX -0.16% culminated with lower results.

Asia:

Major Asian markets ended the day's session with negative results, after starting trading after a long break for the Lunar New Year. In China, its major indices closed lower on concerns about policy tightening and elevated valuations. Analysts report that the market's focus is now on liquidity conditions, which could affect risk appetite. In Japan, stocks fell on investor caution about the market outlook. Soichiro Matsumoto, chief investment officer at Credit Suisse Private Banking, says investors want to assess whether the Nikkei's 30,000 rally reflects the real market situation. Chip-related stocks fell after the Nasdaq closed lower yesterday. Thus, Nidec -2.18%, Renesas Electronics -2.51% and Advantest -3.67%. In Australia, the unemployment rate decreased to 6.4% in January. This is an improvement from December's unemployment rate of 6.6%. Finally, the NIKKEI -0.19%, Shanghai Composite +0.55%, Shenzhen Composite -0.41%, Hang Seng -1.58%, S&P/ASX 200 +0.01% and KOSPI -1.50% closed the day mostly lower.
