INDICES (6 MONTHS)

GLOBAL OVERVIEW

United States:

Major U.S. indices closed mostly higher driven by cyclical sectors and news on private sector employment growth. The technology sector of the S&P 500 posted an increase of +0.09% recovering slightly from losses. Similarly, the energy +3.5% and materials +1.3% sectors led the index's gains. In economic data, the ADP national employment report showed that U.S. private payrolls increased in April by 742,000 jobs following an increase in demand due to government aid and strong vaccination campaigns, according to CNBC. Likewise, the Dow industrials ended the day with gains reaching a record close; boosted by the increase in commodity prices that favor the purchase of cyclical stocks. Pharmaceutical companies were particularly hard hit after the Biden administration announced that it supports waiving intellectual patent protections for COVID-19 vaccines. Finally, the technology index closed with losses after large cap stocks Amazon -1.25%; Facebook -1.05%; Netflix -1.41% fell. Thus DOW Jones +0.29%; S&P 500 +0.07 ended the quarter positive while NASDAQ -0.37% closed with losses.

Europe:

Major European markets closed the day on the back of positive trade data and another positive round of corporate earnings. The pan-European STOXX 600 index closed positive, erasing almost all of Tuesday's losses, when concerns about US policy tightening rattled technology stocks. Meanwhile, eurozone economic data kept investors upbeat: Europe's core resources index rose +4.70% to a 10-year high; eurozone business activity accelerated its industrial growth in April according to the PMI (purchasing managers' index); and producer prices rose 1.10% m-o-m, matching the line of expectations according to Eurostat. On the equity side, Deutsche Post +4.59% after tripling its Q1 earnings, Stellantis +7.04% after reporting higher-than-expected quarterly revenues and Rational +12.73% thanks to its earnings report. Thus, the STOXX 600 +1.82%, CAC 40 +1.40%, FTSE 100 +1.68% and DAX +2.12% closed the day with positive performances.

Asia:

One part of the Asian indices performed negatively while the other part closed unchanged due to not opening for the holiday. The Chinese market was affected as the European commission has announced that it will execute a plan to eliminate its dependence on China and other foreign suppliers in six strategic areas. In turn, he was also impacted by a WHO announcement on some of the results presented by Sinopharm regarding its phase 3 studies. On the other hand, in Hong Kong, technology stocks have dragged the index downwards of which Alibaba -1.85% and Tencent -1.64% stand out. Although at the sector level, some closed positively, such as Services, Finance and Real Estate. In India, meanwhile, banking stocks posted positive returns after the central bank introduced measures to incentivize credit. This measure aims to inject around 6.7 trillion dollars into the economy in order to increase liquidity and facilitate access to health services. Thus, S&P / ASX 200 0.0%, KOSPI 0.00%, NIKKEI 0.00%, Nifty 50 +0.84%, and SSE Composite -0.81% closed mixed.
