INDICES (6 MONTHS)

GLOBAL OVERVIEW

United States:

The main US indices closed negatively as a result of a sharp decline in technology stocks. Investors are putting more pressure on these companies in the face of an inflation risk that could affect even the largest companies and that could slow the growth of these companies despite the economic rebound. The most affected market was the NASDAQ with a drop of -2.55% which was mainly caused by the fall of stocks such as Facebook -4.11%, Alphabet Inc. -2.38% due to Citibank analysts changing the buy recommendation to neutral pointing out potential abuses of the online ad marketplace. In turn, Amazon -3.07% closed the session with a sharp drop after having blocked around 10 billion ads for being suspected of scam and in turn issued around 18.5 billion dollars in bonds; meanwhile, its direct competition Ebay closed up 2.78%. Meanwhile, in the cryptocurrency market Ethereum closes again with a high above $ 4,000; while, the Bitcoin dropped its value below $ 56,000; in turn, the Dogecoin coin fell 14.09%. Thus, the S&P 500 -1.04%, the NASDAQ -2.55% and Dow Jones -0.10% closed lower.

Europe:

The main European indexes ended the daily trading day with positive returns, due to the rebound in commodity prices. The pan-European STOXX 600 index rose to a new all-time high, with mining stocks up 2.30%. Iron and steel futures hit record highs, and copper prices continue to break records due to expectations of improved demand amid tight supply. According to Rupert Thompson, chief investment officer at Kingswood Group, "the commodity price boom is good news for cyclical sectors." On the other hand, European investors are keeping an eye on US inflation data later this week, as well as watching the final stretch of earnings releases from the major index companies. In London, the FTSE 100 fell slightly, affected by the rise in the pound. Boris Johnson, British Prime Minister, announced the next phase of reopening since the COVID-19 blockade. In stock market shares, Reuters highlights Rio Tinto +1.88%, BHP Group +1.63% and Glencore +2.63%. In addition, British polymer company Victrex rose +7.28%, after reporting a 5% increase in sales for its fiscal first half, raising its price target. Thus FTSE 100 -0.08%; DAX 0.00%; CAC +0.01%; STOXX 600 +0.10% closed higher.

Asia:

The main Asian indexes obtained mixed results, due to different strengths of their sectors in their respective markets. Shares in China closed slightly lower, as gains in the energy sector +3.78% and healthcare sector +2.09% were weighed down by technological tension and the fall in the non-cyclical consumer sectors -1.90% and education -2.60 %. Also, the Hong Kong index ended lower, weighed down by the loss in technology stocks that are in the middle of an antitrust war affecting investor confidence. On the other hand, Japanese stocks ended higher, as it was driven by the strength of the US stock market and the rise of the main car brands which were affected by the pandemic. Likewise, South Korean stocks closed positively on US employment data predicting low-rate maintenance, which boosts risk appetite. Thus, S&P / ASX 200 + 1.3%, KOSPI + 1.63%, Nikkei + 0.55%, CSI 300 - 0.07%, Hang Seng -0.05% closed mixed.
