Global Overview:

United States:

In the United States, the main indexes reached record highs despite the dollar falling on Wednesday. On the other hand, President Joe Biden sent to Congress a 1.2 trillion dollar infrastructure development plan. In addition to a social investment bill costing $3.5 trillion over 10 years focused on improvements in the education, health care and climate change sectors. Similarly, statements by Dr. Anthony Fauci, America's leading infectious disease expert, indicated that COVID-19 could be under control by the beginning of the year. Investors remain on edge ahead of the Fed Chairman's speech on Friday. Thus, the S&P 500 closed higher driven by Financials +1.21% and Energy +0.72% supported by oil prices rising more than 1%. In individual stocks American Express led gains in the industrial index due to higher U.S. Treasury yields. Thus; S&P 500 +0.22%; NASDAQ +0.15%; DOW JONES +0.11%

Europe:

Major indices on the European continent ended the day mostly higher as investors remained on hold ahead of the Fed's policy update on Thursday. The daily trading day closed little changed as gains in banking and travel stocks held down losses in utilities. As such, the pan-European STOXX 600 index closed virtually flat, less than 1% off its peak. In the United Kingdom, stocks closed higher, benefiting from the report of the largest increase in retail spending during August. However, inventories fell to the lowest levels on record, putting pressure on prices, according to data from the Confederation of British Industry. In Germany, stocks closed lower on a drop in the country's business morale. The Ifo Institute's business climate index came in at 99.4, below the forecast of 100.4. Meanwhile, investors are watching for updates on the German elections, where a poll showed the center-left Social Democrats ahead of the conservatives in voting intentions with one month to go. Thus, STOXX 600 +0.01%; FTSE 100 +0.34%; CAC 40 +0.18%; DAX -0.28%; IBEX 35 -0.32%

Asia:

The main Asian indices closed with mixed returns thanks to a rally in commodities and the solid results of the previous day of the American market. The Chinese market closed with positive results thanks to the American momentum and gains in the Basic Products sector +2.05% and Energy +1.96%. Meanwhile, the market in Hong Kong closed with negative results because the gains in the Information Technology sector +1.23% could not contain the losses in the Communication Services -0.71% and Non-Basic Consumer Products -0.33% sectors. On the other hand, the Japanese market closed with losses despite having posted gains in the Energy +1.23% and Real Estate +0.59% sectors. On the other hand, the South Korean market closed the day with gains as investors are optimistic about the announcement of the Bank of Korea for tomorrow. Finally, the Australian market closed the day with gains; However, this was not driven by the Energy sector +0.40%, but by the Information Technology sector +1.86% and Materials +1.86%. Thus, NIKKEI -0.03%; HANG SENG -0.13%; CSI 300 + 0.20%; S & P / ASX 200 + 0.38%; KOSPI + 0.38% ended up with mixed returns.
