Global Overview:

United States:

In the United States, markets closed with losses after several Federal Reserve officials signaled their intention to cut back on massive asset purchases this year. In this regard, James Bullard, president of the St. Louis Fed bank, noted that the labor market could remain strong if the fight against the pandemic continues to improve. Today, the report released by the Fed noted that the U.S. economy declined slightly in August mainly due to a drop in the travel and tourism sectors. However, investors are still awaiting the announcement of jobless claims. Thus, the S&P 500 closed lower dragged down by the Materials -1.02% and Energy -1.30% sectors despite higher oil prices. In individual stocks, Game Stop -7% despite posting smaller losses compared to the previous quarter. Similarly, Coinbase closed with losses -3.23% following the panic caused by the fall of Bitcoin yesterday, after the purchase of the asset by the S&P 500 did not generate any enthusiasm in the cryptocurrency market. Thus, Dow Jones -0.20%; S&P 500 -0.13%; NASDAQ -0.57%

Europe:

The main Euro zone indexes closed the day with losses, a day before the European Central Bank meeting. Today, stocks recorded their biggest fall in three weeks, ahead of the debate that will define the cutback of the economic stimulus program. Thus, the pan-European STOXX 600 index suffered losses, with the automotive sector the hardest hit at -2.23%. Similarly, economically sensitive financial services such as oil, energy and banking stocks fell by more than 1.3%. After reaching record highs in August, the European core index has remained below its levels, explained by concerns about central bank policies and signs of slowing economic growth. In the United Kingdom, stocks closed at a two-week low, weighed down by the fall of large companies due to the possible economic slowdown, added to the possible tax increase announced by the British government. In Germany, stocks fell to a one-month low, due to the economic slowdown and the fall in stock markets on Wall Street and in Asia-Pacific. In summary, FTSE 100 -0.75%; CAC 40 -0.85%; DAX -1.47%; STOXX 600 -1.06%

Asia:

The main Asian indexes closed with negative returns, mostly due to the slowdown in the world economy and the uncertainty about the realignment of the Fed's policies. The Chinese market closed with losses dragged by the shares of the Health sectors -1.37%, Primary Products -0.94% and Industrial -0.59%. In turn, the Hong Kong market closed with a negative performance, weighed down by the Industrial -2.60%, Information Technology -1.46% and Energy -0.82% sectors. It should be noted that both markets are awaiting the publication of the consumer and producer price index for the following Tuesday, which generates some caution in investors. Meanwhile, the Japanese market closed the day with gains thanks to a buying rally in the shares of the Communication Services + 2.33%, Information Technology + 1.60% and Real Estate + 1.33% sectors. Finally, the Australian market closed at a loss thanks to the fact that much of the economy is still paralyzed. The most affected sectors were Real Estate -1.27%, Basic Products -1.23% and Materials -1.04%. Thus, NIKKEI + 0.89%; SHANGHAI COMPOSITE -0.04%; HANG SENG -0.12%; CSI 300 -0.41%; S & P / ASX 200 -0.24%; KOSPI -0.76% mostly ended with negative returns.
