Global Overview:

United States:

The U.S. market closed with negative yields as investors' confidence was shaken by increased concerns that the Fed's monetary tightening will not be enough to control inflation with data that showed how market conditions continued to strengthen. Meanwhile, the DOW JONES index ended in negative territory, where the worst affected sectors were Information Technology (-4.56%) and Non-Core Consumer Products (-4.17%) and its 30 components declined. Likewise, the number of jobless claims rose by 19,000 to 200,000, the highest reading since mid-February. Similarly, the S&P500 index, also ended with a negative performance, however Epam System(+10.68) had the best return as it posted earnings per share of $2.49 versus $1.85 initially forecast, however, nonfarm labor productivity fell by 7.5% annualized following a drop in production of 2.4%. Finally, the NASDAQ index was the worst hit of the session, after the paper yields for both a 2-year and 10-year term climbed by 9.6 and 13.9 basis points, respectively achieving a high not seen since November 2018. Thus, DOW JONES -3.12%; S&P 500 -3.57%; NASDAQ -4.99% ended the day with negative results.

Europe:

Major European indices ended the session with mostly negative performances. The pan-European STOXX 600 index closed with a negative performance, in a scenario where European natural gas advanced with lower renewable energy generation boosting demand for the fuel, while traders continue to grapple with the impact of the European Union's proposed sanctions on Russian oil. The FTSE 100 also closed with positive returns, despite the increase in the benchmark interest rate, currently at 1.00%, as it attempts to stem inflationary pressure. Regarding the German market, the DAX index closed lower, in a context where Germany decided to help its team of Eastern European nations for their efforts to help with the sanctions imposed on the Russian country, where the oil and gas sector is targeted. Europe's largest economy is planning to substitute Russian oil and build a liquefied natural gas import infrastructure. Finally, the French market closed negative, in a scenario where Vattenfall AB increases its contracts to buy uranium from its suppliers in France, where the Swedish state signed a contract for them to supply its 2 most powerful nuclear stations from 2024. Thus, FTSE 100 +0.13%; CAC 40 -0.43%; DAX - 0.49%; STOXX 600 -0.70% ended with mostly negative performances.

Asia:

Major Asian indices closed with mostly negative returns as activity in China contracted due to confinements, despite the boost from a more conservative Fed stance on rate hikes. The Chinese market closed in positive territory as the central bank pledged to support monetary policy with the aim of helping companies affected by the nationwide COVID-19 outbreak and boosting the recovery in consumption. The Hang Seng index ended lower as China's services and factory activities contracted at a faster-than-expected pace in April. Confinements due to COVID-19 contagions raised fears of an economic slowdown in the second quarter. The South Korean KOSPI did not trade this session due to the Children's Day holiday. The Japanese market did not trade this session due to the Golden Week holidays. The Australian market ended higher as the Fed adopted a less hawkish tone than expected by raising interest rates by 50-basis points. In addition, Fed Chairman Jerome Powell mentioned that they are not actively considering a 75-basis point hike. Thus, NIKKEI -0.11%; HANG SENG -0.36%; CSI 300 -0.15%; S&P/ASX 200 +0.82%; KOSPI -0.11%, SHANGAI COMPOSITE +0.68% ended with negative returns.
