Global Overview:

United States:

The US market closes with negative returns after a strong employment report cooled expectations of a possible pause in the Fed's aggressive tightening of monetary policy to curb runaway inflation. The DOW JONES index closed in negative territory after a stronger-than-expected jobs report showed that the nation's economy added 390000 payrolls last month, which was above expectations, while wage growth slowed slightly. The S&P500 index also ended with a negative performance, where the worst performing asset was Tesla(-9. 22%), after Elon Musk announced that approximately 10% of salaried jobs would lose their jobs due to a bad feeling about the economic direction of the world's first largest economy, a speech that took investors by surprise since two assembly plants were recently opened and a record volume of global sales was recorded in the most recent quarter on the economy Finally, the NASDAQ index ended with a significant pullback after Cleveland Fed President Loretta Mester mentioned that they may have to continue raising interest rates at the current pace until September unless there is convincing evidence that inflation has peaked. Thus, DOW JONES -1.05%; S&P 500 -1.63%; NASDAQ -2.47% ended the day mostly negative.

Europe:

Major European indices ended the session with negative returns as U.S. jobs data supported aggressive Fed policy tightening. An unexpectedly strong monthly report has dampened investors' hopes for a pause in U.S. interest rates in the fall. The pan-European STOXX 600 index ended with losses as investors increased their bets on an ECB rate hike this year. Following record inflation data in the Eurozone, expectations point to as much as a 50 basis point hike at one of the ECB's October meetings. The British market, reflected in the FTSE 100, was not traded this session due to the Queen's Platinum Jubilee, the 70th anniversary of the accession of Queen Elizabeth II, for the first time in the history of the British crown. Meanwhile, the DAX index closed in negative territory as hopes for signs of easing in the current U.S. interest rate cycle failed to materialize following strong U.S. labor market data. The French market fell this session as the Fed believes that, at this point, there was no reason to consider a pause in rate hikes in September as long as inflation remains too high. Thus, FTSE 100 -0.98%; CAC 40 -0.23%; DAX -0.17%; STOXX 600 -0.26% ended at negative levels...

Asia:

The main Asian indices closed with mostly positive performances. The Chinese market and the Hong Kong market were flat due to the Dragon Boat holiday. The Japanese market closed in positive territory, in a scenario where government bonds are gaining across the curve, as the Bank of Japan's offer to buy super-long bonds is met with reluctance from banks to sell. Also, the BOJ is eyeing a price hike amid a virtuous cycle of improving economic development that includes wage increases. The Australian market ended higher on hopes that U.S. jobs reports may slow the aggressive pace of interest rate hikes; also, the prime minister proposed a minimum wage increase at a rate higher than the inflation rate. On the other hand, South Korea's KOSPI rose this session, even though the consumer price index actually came in at 5.4%, much higher than the previous month. Thus, NIKKEI +1.27%; HANG SENG -1.00%; CSI 300 +0.16%; S&P/ASX 200 +0.88%; KOSPI +0.44%, SHANGAI COMPOSITE +0.42% ended with positive
