Global Overview:

United States:

The U.S. market closes with positive returns, after Wall Street's main indexes posted gains amid choppy trading and lingering concerns about the Fed's next moves to control rising inflation. The DOW JONES index closed in positive territory, boosted by financial institution stocks and health care companies, as investors digested hawkish comments regarding an interest rate hike later this month. Meanwhile, data showed that unemployment fell last week, underscoring a strength in the U.S. market amid rising interest rates. The S&P500 index swung between gains and losses to finally close higher after both Chairman Powell and ECB's Lagarde reiterated actions to be taken to control inflation. In doing so, they further curbed any speculation of an imminent policy change. On the corporate side GameStop Corp rose 7.4% after a smaller-than-expected quarterly loss, while American Eagle Outfitters plunged 8.7%. Finally, the NASDAQ index closed with positive performance, registering positive returns in giants such as Tesla +1.96%, NVDA +2.01%, Moderna +4.66%, among others. Likewise, the dollar gained against the Yen due to the Fed Chairman's hawkish stance. Thus, DOW JONES +0.61%; S&P 500 +0.66%; NASDAQ +0.60% ended the day with positive results.

Europe:

The main European indices ended the session with positive returns. However, the dollar lost value during the session, due to investors' concerns that the European Central Bank will increase its rate, even more than the 75 points already raised. On the other hand, at market close, Queen Elizabeth II passed away at the age of 96. The pan-European STOXX 600 index ended with gains, driven by positive performances in the banking and financial sector, with increases of over 2.3% and 1.2%, respectively. On the other hand, retail stocks closed with losses of -1.5%. The U.K. market, reflected in the FTSE 100, ended with losses due to people's concerns about the future of London. There was a slightly somber mood as news filtered through about concerns over the Queen's health. Similarly, the German market, reflected in the DAX index closed in negative territory hurt by the real estate sector and in response to statements from the European Central Bank. The French market rose this session, driven mainly by the financial sector. Meanwhile, concerns about the energy crisis persist, after Russian President Vladimir Putin threatened to completely cut off energy supplies to the West if the West tries to limit Russian export prices. Thus, FTSE 100 +0.33%; CAC 40 +0.33%; DAX -0.09%; STOXX 600 +0.50% ended at negative levels.

Asia:

Major Asian indices closed with mostly mixed performances. The Chinese market closed in negative territory as persistent domestic COVID-19 flare-ups kept the mood subdued and clouded the economic outlook. The Hang Seng index ended lower after the announcement of extended confinements in Chengdu and on caution ahead of the European Central Bank's rate decision and Fed comments. The South Korean market rose this session, helped by institutional buying in a context where concerns about the Fed rate hike prevail. The combined buying between institutions and investors totaled 641 trillion won. The Japanese market rose this session thanks to the gap between interest rates in Japan and the United States. The contrast between Japan's accommodative stance and the U.S. tightening stance weakened the yen, which improved the outlook for Japanese exporters on the possibility of higher earnings per share. The Australian market ended higher after the Reserve Bank of Australia suggested small rate hikes in the future. The bank's governor, Philip Lowe, stated that they are close to their neutral estimates, which would indicate a possible reduction in the pace of tightening. Thus, NIKKEI +2.31%; HANG SENG -1.00%; CSI 300 -0.43%; S&P/ASX 200 +1.77%; KOSPI +0.33%; SHANGAI COMPOSITE -0.33% ended with negative returns.
