Global Overview

United States:

The US stock market ended today with positive results among its main indices, with the three main indices reaching record levels in the intraday. This occurred in a context in which investors absorbed news about talks of a possible merger between Broadcom and Qualcomm, as well as corporate earnings news and about the tax bill, led by Republicans. In news on commodities, the prices of oil futures rose on the day, driven by the political turmoil that occurred over the weekend in Saudi Arabia, which left officials and members of the royal family in detention. Also, this upward trend that is seen lately is partly due to the possibility that OPEC extends the agreement on production cuts until 2018. At the end of this month a meeting is scheduled to take a decision on the matter. On the other hand, prices of gold futures rose due to a rebound in the price of commodities, such as oil, and declines in the dollar against its main rivals according to ICE U.S. Dollar Index. The rise of oil prices is seen as a sign of possible increase in inflation, as well as setbacks in interest rates.

Europe:

The European stock market closed with negative results among its main indices, with the exception of the English national index "FTSE 100". This index closed positive again, helped in part by the medical products supplier company "ConvaTec Group PLC". The company gained close to +3% after the US analysts that the market is with "extremely bearish" outlook, so they updated the situation from "neutral" to "buy". Regarding economic data, sales of new cars in the United Kingdom fell by -12.2% in October, marking the seventh month with losses, as reported by the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders today. On the other hand, investors are cautious about the news in Saudi Arabia, which directly affect oil prices, which rose to today after the arrest of Prince Alwaleed Bin Talal in an anti-corruption "purge". SMMT executive director Mike Haines said in a statement, "The decline in business and consumer confidence is undoubtedly affecting demand in the new car market, but this is compensated by growth over government policy. about diesel." With respect to Spain, the activity of the service sector in Spain was the slowest since January, the political uncertainty in the region of Catalonia slowed down the diesel. IHS Markit said on Monday. The seasonally adjusted reading fell from 56.7 in September to 54.6 in October and below the FactSet estimate of 55.4.

Asia:

The Asian stock market ended today's session with mixed results among its main indices. Among the most important events, the president of the United States, Donald Trump, began his five-year tour of Asia visiting Japan, considered the third largest economy in the world. This could explain why Japanese stocks decreased their initial gains, even though the yen depreciated against the US dollar (which benefits exporters, who have a great weight in the market, by raising their international competitiveness). Regarding Hong Kong, the Hang Seng index had losses due to the decreases that occurred in the shares related to the property and financial sectors. This situation happened, according to some strategists, because the investors took profits after the comments of the governor of the Central Bank of China, Zhou Xiaochuan, about the rising risks of the Chinese financial system. Meanwhile, political unrest in Saudi Arabia also caused nervousness in Hong Kong investors, as cabinet ministers and Saudi royal authorities made many arrests. On the other hand, among the stocks that stood out the most due to their declines, were China Evergrande, ICBC, Construction Bank and China Vanke (-3.3%, -1.4%, -1% and -0.9%, respectively).
