Global Overview

United States:

The US stock market ended the session with negative results, after Republicans in Congress sent tax-cutting legislation to President Donald Trump for his signature. On the corporate side, shares of FedEx Corp. rose around +3.20%, after the package delivery giant announced late on Tuesday that the results of the second quarter exceeded expectations, on the other hand, the company Stitch Fix Inc. reported its latest quarterly earnings results after today's bell, revealing adjusted earnings of 0.04 cents per share exceeding forecasts, however the figure is lower than last year, falling approximately 71.43% compared to the previous year. Last year. In macroeconomic data, home sales increased at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 5.81 million in November, reported the Association of Realtors, despite the great jump, the housing market is still plagued by a chronic crisis of supply. Inventory without inventories would take 3.4 months to sell at the current rate, well below the value of 5-6 months of supply that normally indicates a balanced market. In addition, properties remained on the market for an average of 40 days in November, which is longer than the average of 34 days in October.

Europe:

The European stock market closed the day with negative results. European stocks had their second fall today with a new rise in the euro against the dollar. In the United Kingdom, the International Monetary Fund lowered its forecast for UK growth in 2017 from 1.7% to 1.6% and said it expects slow growth of 1.5% in 2018. The IMF said last year's decision to leave the Union. The European Union slowed growth, warning that a "collapse in discussions could lead to a disorderly exit from the EU and sharp falls in asset prices." Prior to the June 2016 Brexit referendum, the IMF had warned that a "farewell" from the European Union as a result would have serious consequences for the UK economy. European investors also watched closely the events in the United States, where Republicans were getting closer and closer to sending a bill of tax cuts and other changes to President Donald Trump to sign the law. The Senate approved a massive revision of the tax code after Wednesday and it is expected that the Chamber will do so throughout the day. Regarding the companies, Royal Dutch Shell PLC lost -0.5% after an Italian court ruled that the Anglo-Dutch oil company and Italy's ENI SpA will face trial for an alleged $ 1.1 billion bribery scandal in Nigeria.

Asia:

The Asian stock market ended today's session with negative results among its main indices. This was due to the fact that, although there were not many movements in the main benchmarks of the equity market, there were abrupt changes in the Bitcoin cryptocurrency, which ended in a fall that affected the Asian negotiations. According to CoinDesk (news website, specializing in digital currencies), this drop was from less than the $ 19,000 level to $ 15,600, all in a matter of one hour. Then it bounced and came to settle at $ 17,400. Some analysts claim that these oscillations are explained by the movements of money from the bitcoin to an alternative cryptocurrency called bitcoin cash. Most stock indexes were at the same levels as the close on Tuesday, although the Malaysian benchmark index rose 0.6%, recovering from its second largest fall of 2017 the previous day. Meanwhile, in New Zealand, its stock index fell by 0.2%, while the Australian index reached another record high of ten years. On the other hand, in Japan, although the yen had declines against the US dollar, stocks were not driven as expected and the Nikkei 225 index only increased by 0.1%.
