Global Overview

United States:

The US stock market ended today with positive results among its main indices. Stocks rallied as investors seem to have brushed aside worries about steel and aluminum tariffs to focus on February's labor report, which was higher than expected with the creation of 313,000 new jobs. Also, the report indicated that the hourly payment increased by 0.1%, lower than the expected of 0.2%, which eased a bit the worries about rising inflation. The Nasdaq Composite Index stood out at the close of the session during the session, which has not happened since January 26. In news on commodities, gold prices closed in positive territory during the session, thus eliminating the losses of the week. This was because the US dollar depreciated against its main rivals, thus allowing dollar-denominated assets such as gold to become cheaper for investors using other currencies. On the other hand, oil prices rose today thanks to the news of a possible meeting between US President Donald Trump and North Korean leader Kim Jong-un. The possibility of reaching geopolitical stability improves the oil market.

Europe:

The European stock market finished the session with positive results among its indices, this is because a strong US employment report generated a boost to European shares, while US tariffs for steel and aluminum affected the steelmakers. In addition, the jobs report for February showed a much slower-than-expected wage growth, calming investors who were worried about a faster rate of inflation. In business news, Airbus rose 1.3, while BAE Systems gained 2.2, helped by the conclusion of the talks between Britain and Saudi Arabia in a multi-million dollar order of 48 Typhoon aircraft manufactured by the defense contractor. Finally, the total trade deficit of the United Kingdom widened by £ 3.4 billion to £ 8.7 billion in the three months through January, driven largely by a decrease in fuel exports and an increase in fuel imports. Excluding basic products, the deficit widened by £ 2.6 billion to £ 8.9 billion.

Asia:

The Asian stock market closed the day with positive returns among its main indices, except for the benchmark index of India. Asian shares closed higher on news of a potential meeting between North Korean leader Kim Jong Un and US President Donald Trump, which calmed investor concerns about geopolitical tensions. The news came with the invitation letter from Kim Jong Un addressed to the White House through the national security adviser of South Korea. Kim Jun Un reaffirmed that he is prepared to suspend nuclear missile tests while North Korea is committed to discussing issues about a denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula, which reduces geopolitical fears among participants in global markets. However, many analysts remain skeptical of a significant breakthrough in relations between these two countries. The South Korean reference index "Kospi" closed in positive territory even though the won strengthened against the dollar. Likewise, the Japanese benchmark "Nikkei 225" reached + 2.4% gain in morning transactions and ended with a gain of + 0.5%. On the other hand, the Bank of Japan left its aggressive policy of flexibilization unchanged and offered no new clues as to when and how it could join other major central banks to reduce its measures, as Haruhiko Kuroda heads for a second five-year term as governor.
