Global Overview

United States:

The US stock market ended the session with positive results, being driven by data on the slow growth of salaries, easing concerns about early increases in interest rates. In more detail, the Labor Department reported that the unemployment rate in the United States fell to 3.9%, a figure close to the minimum of 18 years. In addition, the indexes were helped by the company Apple and the rest of companies in the technology sector. This increase was due to the fact that the renowned US investor revealed that it had raised its stake in the iPhone manufacturer, generating an increase of around 3.9% in the price of Apple shares. On the other hand, the price of Fluor Corp shares fell 22.4%, the biggest loss in the S & P, after the engineering and construction company recorded a surprising quarterly loss due to problems with a gas-powered project. Finally, prices for a barrel of oil rose 1.9% on Friday to close at the highest level since November 2014. Although US President Donald Trump has not yet announced whether he will withdraw from the 2015 Iranian nuclear deal when he approaches the deadline of May 12.

Europe:

The European stock market ended the day today with positive results among its main indices. The results of the day followed the optimistic view of the trade talks between the United States and China, which today entered its second day in Beijing. According to US Treasury Secretary Steve Mnuchin, the talks are on the right track, which reduced concerns about the recent tensions that have affected world markets. However, it should be noted that the US delegation has presented Chinese officials with a long list of demands with the aim of reducing the trade imbalance between the two powers. On the other hand, European stocks saw modest gains in the session due in part to disappointing March sales by eurozone retailers, which grew +0.8%, below the estimate of +1.9 % by FactSet. In news from the United Kingdom, gains from the mining sector helped the British benchmark index rise +0.86%, marking the sixth consecutive week of gains. Likewise, the pound sterling fell to 1.3530 from 1.3487 dollars at the close of the previous session, thus benefiting British exporters.

Asia:

The Asian market closed the session with negative results among its main indices. The financial sector was the most affected due to investor's concern about an environment of rising interest rates. It would be expected that the Federal Reserve raise the interest rate gradually. Shares of major banks in Hong Kong and South Korea fell on Friday, as is the case with Standard Chartered and HSBC. The latter has reported an increase in costs in the first quarter. Some analysts, such as Oriano Lizza, CMC Markets' sales operator, attribute the declines in Hong Kong's indexes to nervous investment flows in China, concerns about the trade tension between the United States and China, which could divert money from China destined to invest in initial public offerings in the continent. Likewise, the Hang Seng index (HSI) closed at -1.28%, its sixth drop in the last nine trading days. In business news, Ping An Healthcare's IPO of $1.1 million closed the day without incident (0.00%), the fall of Samsung Electronics (-2.08%) dragged down the Korean SEU index (-1.04%), the financial sector of Singapore also remained under pressure dragging the STI index (-0.85%). Regarding Japan, its market remained closed for vacations.
