Global Overview:

United States:

The US stock market ended today with positive results among its main indices. The stocks were negatively affected at the start of the session due to tensions generated between the United States and the rest of the G-7 nations during the meeting in Canada for a two-day summit in which they focused on trade issues. The tensions were generated by a dispute between US President Donald Trump and the presidents of Canada and France on tariff issues. For his part, Trump announced that he is planning to retire before the end of the summit to head to Singapore before his meeting scheduled for Tuesday with North Korean leader Kim Jong Un. However, investors diverted their attention to these issues during the session, thus recovering the losses that were generated at the beginning. Also, the next focus of attention for investors is on the decisions of the central bank for next week, as it is expected that the Federal Reserve will increase its interest rate. On the other hand, the US dollar and the Japanese yen appreciated against their main rivals, because the tensions generated by the meeting of the G-7 caused traders to seek refuge in these currencies.

Europe:

The European market finished the session with downward results among its main indices. While the regional index Stoxx 600 closed negative (-0.21%) like the DAX in Germany (-0.35%), the Italian FTSE 1.89% and the FTSE100 of the United Kingdom (-0.30%), in France the CAC40 managed to finish in positive terrain (+0.03%). Saturday's meeting of the member countries of the G7 is generating tension for investors after the strong exchange yesterday on Twitter between Donald Trump and the presidents of Canada and France on tariffs, besides today saying that Russia should be invited to the meeting of developed countries (G8). In the same way, the Italian stock indices were the worst hit in the region after the new minister of industry, Luigi Di Maio, commented that he is going to request more funds from the European Union budget, and also, his new prime minister He has shown his support for the president of the United States in his attempt to include Russia again. In corporate news, the shares of Deutsche Bank (-2.26%) and Commerzbank (-1.80%) fell after a report was published saying that Deutsche Bank is exploring the possibility of merging with its German rival.

Asia:

The Asian market ended the session with sharp declines, led by China and Hong, as a result of pre-summit tensions between the United States and its allies. Before the start of the meeting of the G7 leaders, President Donald Trump and Emmanuel Macron, president of France, exchanged tweets in a dispute over the US commercial position. This type of commercial friction does generate uncertainty in global markets. In Hong Kong the fall of technology giant Tencent (-3.31%) dragged the HSI index (-1.76%) during the session, this broke the winning streak of the index of six consecutive days with gains. In the same way it happened with Samsung Electronic whose fall of -1.88% dragged the performance of the South Korean index SEU -0.77%. For its part, the Shanghai SHCOMP index fell -1.36% and the Japanese NIK -0.56%. In economic news, China's exports grew 12.6% in May in dollar terms, this increase was higher than the 10.6% that had been expected, meanwhile its imports also increased by 26.0% in May, which was also higher than expected. On the other hand, the long-awaited summit between Washington and Pyongyang keeps going this June 12 in Singapore.
