Global Overview:

United States:

The US stock market ended today with negative results among its main indices. This comes after US President Donald Trump threatened to impose tariffs of up to 400 billion dollars on Chinese goods, further increasing tensions over a trade war. The US benchmark index that fell the most during the session was the Dow Jones Industrial Average, which fell to -1.15%, as it was highly correlated with commercial problems as it is composed mainly of large multinational companies. This marked its sixth consecutive decline and the strongest since May 29, thus ending all of its 2018 gains. According to Jim Mellon, a billionaire investor and president of the asset management firm Burnbrae Group, these setbacks are just the beginning of a strong correction of the US market, since the shares are at very high prices. On the other hand, the commercial problems led investors to take refuge in the yen, considering a safe haven by providing liquidity and stability in times of volatility, leading it to appreciate against its main rivals, such as the dollar and the euro. Finally, the price of crude oil closed at a loss thanks to expectations that OPEC announce its decision to increase production by the end of this week.

Europe:

The European stock market closed the session with results for the third consecutive day after President Trump said it will hit China with more than $ 200 billion in imports, thus increasing the tension in the world. The Stoxx Europe 600 index fell -0.70%, with the technology and materials sectors hit the hardest. The British FTSE 100 index fell -0.36%, as did the Italian FTSE MIB (-0.07%) and the French CAC 40 (-1.10%). Of the British index, the basic materials sector was the most affected while the telecommunications and public services sectors showed the best performance. The pound sterling continues to depreciate against the dollar, the last Monday in New York the pound was quoted at $ 1.3245. As for the euro, it went from buying $ 1.1624 to $ 1.1585 on the last Monday in New York. In business news, shares of mining companies Anglo American PLC and Antofagata PLC fell -2.27% and -1.57% respectively, while steelmaker Arcelor Mittal PLC fell -3.84%. In economic news, the balance of the current account of the region decreased to 28,400 million euros ($ 32,900 million) from a revised surplus of 32,800 million euros in March.

Asia:

The Asian market closed the day with negative results among its main indices. Tension for the trade war remains upwards due to yesterday's announcement by the United States to increase tariffs to China by $ 200 billion, who has promised to respond in the same way, to what the United States threatened to respond with another additional $200 billion. These facts were reflected in the Chinese indexes Shanghai Composite, which reached -3.78%, its worst fall in almost 2 years; and in the Shenzhen Composite, which fell -5.77%, the worst so far since September 2015. In the same way, the Japanese Nikkei reached -1.77%. Another effect of the trade war is the appreciation of the Japanese yen to be seen as a more secure currency, while the value of the Chinese yuan remains on the downside, reaching up to 6.4947 yuan per dollar. In Chinese business news, shares of mobile phone maker ZTE Corp. fell -9.99% in Hong Kong and -24.81% in China after the US Senate decided to resume the ban on the sale of components to the company; while smartphone maker Xiaomi Corp. decided to postpone its anticipated initial public offering without specifying a new date.
