Global Overview:

United States:

The US market closed the session with negative results among its main indices. The Nasdaq was downgraded by a drop in the price of Apple's shares because of fears of further The US market closed the session with negative results among its main indices. The Nasdaq was downgraded by a drop in the price of Apple's shares because of tears of turther regulation. Six of the major we had and Internet services companies, which include Apple, Google and Amazon, will have teal their consumer data privacy practices this September 26 before a panel of the United States Senate, which opens the possibility of a stricter regulation. In other news, OPEC cut its forecasts for the growth of world oil demand in 2019, According to 1st monthly report, the world oil demand of romety are would be 1.41 million barrels per day 2,0000 by less than last month, being in turn, the second consecutive reduction in its forecasts. After this announcement, the price of crude oil fell briefly, although it then recovered reaching 5.79.66. On the other hand, Goldman Sachs and JP Morgan highlight the potential danger for the American corporations that would imply an outbreak of the commercial war between the United States and its partners. According to JP Morgan analysts, the combined earnings per share of the companies that make up the SPX could fall $ 10 if they impose a 25% increase in bilateral taxes.

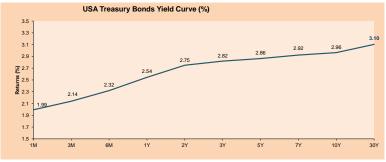

Europe:

The European stock market closed with positive results among its main indices. The STOXX Europe 600 rose 0.47% driven by the performance of stocks linked to oil and minerals. The price of Brent oil reached 580 a barrel after a fall in crude inventory in the US and concerns about the world supply related to sanctions on Iran. Galapagos NV (+ 7.55%) Dutch blotechnology company had the best performance of the index, after reporting positive results of a clinical trial of a new drug to treat rheumatoid arthritis. The German benchmark index, DAX, closed at + 0.52% with all sectors on the rise minus Public Services (3.54%) and Telecommunications (-0.25%). Addiss presented the best performance within the index, with a result of + 1.95%, while Infineon Technologies fell 5.48%. In other news, Bloomberg reported that in the coming days the United Kingdom and the European Union will announce a special summit to sign Bresti agreement in November. The FTSE 100 Index ended the session at + 0.55%, driven by the shares of British American Tabacco PLC and BP PLC, which increased by 5.87% and 1.64% respectively.

Asia:

The Asian market closed the session with negative results among its main indices amid increased trade tensions after China is requesting permission to the WTO (World Trade Organization) to impose sanctions against the United States. The Hang Seng ended at -0.29%, which reached a minimum of 14 months; while the Shanghai Composite followed the same behavior, being -0.33% disadvantaged by the finance sector. According to Mark Carney, governor of the Bank of England, China's financial system presents one of the greatest risks to global financial stability. In addition, China is expected to report an investment growth in August, after chaing record lows, weak domestic demand and stagnant industrial growth for the third consecutive month. The Nikkei 225 fell -0.27%, highlighting that the Bank of Japan will keep its monetary policy stable with inflation far from its 2% target; in addition, it will allow yields on 10-year bonds to increase around 0.2%. Among the main news, the Turkish Central Bank is expected to raise interest rates (27.75%) to easie the currency crisis, but the magnitude of the increase depends largely as the monetary authority balances concerns about the weakness of the Turkish lira before a possible economic slowdown.
