Global Overview:

United States:

The US stock market closed the session with positive results among its main indices, DJIA (+0.97%), SPX (+1.08%) and the Nasdaq (+2.31%). Yields on US Treasuries rose on Wednesday after the employment report released on Friday showed stronger than expected indicators (an increase of 227,000 jobs in October), with a positive performance in equity markets it would cause investors to demand less safe assets such as US government notes. On the other hand, Facebook relieved its investors on Tuesday by showing a forecast that its margins would stop shrinking after 2019 after the costs of the scandals decrease. In business news, General Motors announced on Wednesday that it would cut costs in response to market and tariff prices. The automaker said it would offer to pay salaried employees with 12 or more years of service to retire from the company instead of firing them, thus reducing costs. The price of oil remained in sight, after falling as its largest monthly decline since July 2016. The Energy Information Administration reported that domestic crude supplies increased by 3.2 million barrels as of October 26.

Europe:

The European stock market closed the session with positive results among its main indices, driven by results from companies such as L'Oréal (+6.71%), Sanofi (+4.3271) and Santander (+2.1054) that helped contain the pessimistic mood of the market. The STOXX Europe 600, which is composed of companies from 17 countries in the region, closed at 361.61 points, which represents a variation of +1.71% with respect to the previous close. Of the sectors that make up the benchmark, the best performer was Energy (2.97%) while the only one with a negative result was Public Services (-0.41%). The index had its worst month since January 2016 and maintains a performance so far this year of -8.5%. The French benchmark index, the CAC 40, varied by +2.31%, driven by L'Oréal that increased its sales significantly in the third quarter, due to higher demand in the Asian market. In other news, the Finnish company Nokian Renkaat, dedicated to the development, manufacture and marketing of tires, did not meet the minimum expectations of analysts regarding their sales or operating profit, which generated a 10% drop in response.

Asia:

The Asian markets ended the day with positive results. In Hong Kong the Hang Seng index closed at +1.60%, however, it has a cumulative loss of 10% in October, the biggest drop since January 2016, which would also be the sixth consecutive month of adverse results. On the other hand, in Mainland China the Shanghai Composite index closed at +1.35% despite the publication of unfavorable macroeconomic results, where manufacturing activity reached its lowest value of the last 27 months in October, 50.2, product of the commercial tensions with the United States, reaching very close to the 50 bar that marks the difference between expansion or contraction of the economy. The same happened for the non-manufacturing activity, which reached 53.9, a minimum of 14 months. In other news, the Bank of Japan kept the monetary policy unchanged, low interest rates, and confirmed that it would not reach its inflation target of 2% at least until 2021. The measure is related to the intention of the bank to counteract the possible effects of the commercial war on the growth in Japan, where the Nikkei index closed today at +2.16% as a result of the publication of favorable quarterly results in companies such as Honda (+6.47%) and Sony (+4.74%).
