WORLD

United States:

The US market closed with negative returns. The DOW JONES index closed in the red as the ISM services PMI unexpectedly rose to 54.5 in August, pointing to the strongest services sector growth in six months, well above forecasts of 52.5. Meanwhile, oil prices remained at November highs, adding to concerns about a rise in inflation. Technology and consumer discretionary stocks were the worst performers. The S&P 500 index also ended with a negative performance, Apple shares lost 3.6% after news that China had ordered officials at central government agencies not to use iPhones and other foreign-branded devices for work. In addition, the European Commission designated Amazon, Apple, Alphabet, Meta, Microsoft and China's ByteDance as gatekeepers under its new Digital Markets Act. Finally, the NASDAQ index ended the day down, the stocks that fell the most were Hitek Global Inc (-86.84%), EZGO Technologies Ltd (-82.95%) and Verb Technology Co Inc (-40.94%). Thus, DOW JONES +0.23%, S&P 500 -0.02% and NASDAQ -0.12% ended the day with mixed results.

Europe:

Major European indices ended the session with negative returns. As investors grappled with the possibility of a pause in the ongoing tightening of monetary policy, driven by weak economic data, while considering headline comments from ECB official Klaas Knot. The pan-European STOXX 600 index closed negative as auto fuel sales declined 1.2% amid rising prices. On the other hand, food, beverages and tobacco sales rose 0.4%, and non-food sales advanced 0.5%, marking the fourth consecutive month of gains. In addition, Knot, a member of the ECB's Governing Council, warned that traders betting against a rate hike next week may be underestimating the likelihood of it occurring. The UK market, reflected in the FTSE 100, ended in negative territory. This was because Bank of England Governor Andrew Bailey, during his appearance before the British Parliament, stated that the CB was nearing the conclusion of its series of interest rate hikes, although the prospect of further hikes loomed over him due to persistent inflationary pressures. At the same time, another member, Swati Dhingra, expressed concern that interest rates had already reached a level that could harm the economy if they were raised further. Similarly, the German market closed negative, mainly due to declines in household goods and banks following weak data from the region. In addition, the latest figures showed that factory orders in Germany plunged more than expected in July, and retail sales in the euro zone also fell more than expected. The French market closed negative, as investors remain concerned about high inflation caused by the recent rise in oil prices and the economic outlook. Rising crude oil prices, which fueled inflationary pressures, also weighed on investors' risk appetite. Thus, FTSE 100 -0.16%; CAC 40 -0.84%; DAX -0.19%; STOXX 600 -0.57% ended at negative levels.

Asia:

Major Asian indices closed with mostly mixed returns, The Chinese market ended with negative returns, with mainland stocks struggling for clear direction as investor sentiment was affected by higher oil prices and U.S. Treasury yields. In line, the Hang Seng index closed with losses as gains in property and financials offset losses in technology and consumers. The South Korean market ended negative, amid high oil prices that ignited inflation concerns. The Japanese market closed higher with the weakest yen rate since November boosting automakers, while energy stocks outperformed amid higher crude oil prices. The Australian market ended lower, where banking and technology stocks dragged Australian shares lower as data showed the country's economy grew modestly in the second quarter. Thus, NIKKEI +0.62%; HANG SENG -0.04%; CSI 300 -0.22%; S&P/ASX 200 -0.78%; KOSPI -0.73%, SHANGHAI COMPOSITE +0.12% ended with mixed performances.
