WORLD

United States:

The U.S. market closed with negative yields. The DOW JONES index closed lower, where data triggered a rally in Treasury yields, enough to send the index lower with Microsoft (-2.1%) and Visa (-1.3%) as the main losers. The S&P 500 index also ended with losses. Against a backdrop where U.S. data on initial claims for state unemployment benefits pointed to still resilient labor market conditions, a day after a report that showed U.S. private payrolls rose less than expected in September. Finally, the NASDAQ index ended with negative returns. Where benchmark U.S. Treasury yields declined on Thursday after reaching their highest level since 2007 earlier this week. Thus, DOW JONES -0.03%, S&P 500 -0.13% and NASDAQ -0.12% ended the day with negative results.

Europe:

The main European indices ended the session with positive performances. The pan-European STOXX 600 index closed higher, against a backdrop where the Eurozone HCOB construction PMI rose slightly to 43.6 in September, but continued to point to a sharp contraction in the construction sector. Demand conditions remained weak, with new business falling at the fastest pace since May 2020. The U.K. market, reflected in the FTSE 100, closed with positive results. On the corporate front, Imperial Brands (+3.9%) was the best performer after saying it is on track to meet its full-year forecast thanks to high cigarette prices and demand for tobacco alternatives. Similarly, Tesco (+3.6%) posted strong gains, while JD Sports Fashion (-3%) performed worse. Similarly, reflected in the DAX index, the German market closed in negative territory. Banks across the country posted solid gains to enjoy some respite after this week's decline, with UniCredit, HSBC, Santander and BNP Paribas adding more than 1%. The French market closed with slight gains, reflecting investor caution, while bond yields showed signs of stabilizing, although they remained elevated. On the corporate front, shares of train manufacturer Alstom plunged nearly 40% after the company warned that its free cash flow for the full year would be negative. Renault, Edeleanu, Capgemini and Saint Gobain were

Asia:

Major Asian indices closed with mostly positive returns. The Chinese market ended with mixed performances, shaken by a drop in U.S. equity contracts ahead of key employment data, including weekly jobless claims and September nonfarm payrolls. In addition, a return to growth in manufacturing activity last month and a surge in travel over the Golden Week vacation fuel hopes that the economic recovery could gain traction. In line, the Hang Seng index closed higher, driven by the real estate, financial and technology sectors; in a context where traders remained very attentive to volatility in the global fixed income market, as it seems that borrowing costs will remain on the rise for longer, especially in advanced countries. A proposal to keep financial markets open in extreme weather conditions, such as typhoons, is also being fast-tracked. The South Korean market ended negatively, as the annual inflation rate rose to 3.7% in September, well above market expectations, due to higher prices for utilities and manufactured goods; while the central bank maintained its policy rate at 3.5%. Japanese markets closed higher, where investors continued to keep an eye on the yen, on reports suggesting that Japanese authorities did not carry out any monetary intervention when it plunged to 150 to the dollar on Tuesday. In addition, notable gains were seen from index heavyweights such as Toyota Motor (4.5%), Mitsubishi UFJ (4%) and Kawasaki Kisen (3.7%). The Australian market ended higher as the Reserve Bank kept the policy rate unchanged at 4.1% at its October meeting, maintaining rates for the fourth consecutive month, as expected. Still, the board stated that inflation remains too high and that further tightening may be needed to bring it back to the 2 to 3% target range by the end of 2025. Thus, NIKKEI +1.80%; HANG SENG +0.10%; CSI 300 -0.30%; S&P/ASX 200 +0.51%; KOSPI -0.09%; SHANGHAI COMPOSITE +0.10% ended with mostly positive returns.
