United States:

The US market closed with negative results. The DOW JONES index closed negative, extending losses after the Federal Reserve released minutes that showed officials were disappointed by recent inflation data and believed "disinflation will likely take longer than previously thought." "And that, combined with investor concerns about an overinflated market, is fueling nervousness on Wall Street," said Greg Bassuk, managing director at AXS Investments in New York. The S&P 500 index closed in negative territory amid mixed quarterly results from retailers Target TGT.N and TJX TXJ.N raised questions about the resilience of the U.S. consumer. Finally, the NASDAQ ended in the red. On the corporate front, losses were widespread among the major rate-sensitive sectors, with Tesla falling 3.5% and Alphabet down 0.9%. Meanwhile, Nvidia shares traded 0.5% lower ahead of its expected earnings report after the close of trading, as its forecasts will serve as a key sentiment check for the global uptick in artificial intelligence this year. Thus, the DOW JONES -0.51%, the S&P 500 -0.27%, and the NASDAQ -0.18% ended with negative returns.

Europe:

The main European indices ended the session with negative returns. These results are explained by investors' decisions, who were pressured to take precautions in anticipation of the release of the Fed's latest results, as well as those of Nvidia. Thus, the technology sector had a mixed performance while waiting for Nvidia's results. The UK market, reflected in the FTSE 100, ended negative due to rising inflation rates in the UK and speculation about a possible general election, with UK consumer prices rising by 2.3% in April. This has delayed the expectation of an interest rate cut by the Bank of England. On the other hand, metals miners and energy stocks fell by 2.7% and 2.4% respectively, due to the decline in gold and copper prices. Similarly, the German market closed negative, maintaining the caution of other European markets. The large automotive stocks in Frankfurt led the losses due to rumors that China could impose tariffs of up to 25% on the automotive sector. On the corporate side, Porsche, Mercedes, BMW and Volkswagen recorded falls of between 3.6% and 6.0%. On the technology sector side, it showed a mixed performance while Nvidia's results were awaited. The main index of the Paris Stock Exchange, CAC 40, ended negative. The result was influenced by the expectation of Nvidia's results and the release of the FOMC minutes, which generated caution in the market. Luxury giants in Paris led the losses, causing the CAC 40 to underperform other European indices, after Chanel warned of difficult times for the luxury industry. Thus, FTSE 100 -0.55%; CAC 40 -0.61%; DAX -0.25%; STOXX X 600 -0.34% ended with negative returns.

Asia:

The main Asian indices closed with mixed performances. The Chinese market ended the session with slight gains, with real estate stocks leading the advance after Beijing recently issued a series of measures to support China's ailing real estate sector. Markets also continued to gauge the possibility of further policy easing in China after the central bank decides to keep key interest rates stable this month as it aims to support growth while defending its currency. In the South Korean market measured by the Kospi index, it closed with losses. Where in the corporate sector the fall of financial companies was led by KB Financial (-1.4%), Shinhan Financial (-1.4%), Hana Financial (-1.4%) and Samsung Life (-2.8%). In Hong Kong, the Hang Seng index closed in the red. The index closed lower for the second consecutive session as trade tensions between China and the West grew. Beijing could raise tariffs by up to 25% on imported cars with large engines in a retaliatory move, Bloomberg News said. In Japan, the Nikkei index closed with gains. Losses in the technology sector were led by Tokyo Electron (-1.3%), Laoerte (1.2%), Socionext (-0.4%), Advantest (-0.8%) and Renesas Electronics (-1.4%). In corporate news, Toyota Motor is considering a more than $5 million investment in a plant in Texas that would make the Tundra pickup truck and Sequoia SUV. In the Australian market, returns were negative. A sharp 3.9% drop in Telstra Group also weighed on the index after brokerages reduced their price targets for the telecoms giant due to tough competition. In summary, NIKKEI -0.85%; HANG SENG -0.13%; CSI 300 +0.23%; S&P/ASX 200 +0.05%; KOSPI -0.03%, SHANGHAI COMPOSITE +0.02% ended with mixed returns.
