WORLD

United States:

The U.S. market closed with mostly positive results. The DOW JONES index closed negative, after the Summary of Economic Projections indicated that FOMC members' expectations were for a single 25 basis point rate cut this year, less than the two rate cuts currently expected by the markets. The S&P 500 index closed in positive territory, following the release of a softer-than-expected inflation report, with an unexpected drop in headline inflation and a larger-than-expected decline in the core indicator. In addition, the Federal Reserve maintained the fed funds target range at 5.25%-5.50% for the seventh consecutive meeting in June 2024, in line with expectations. The NASDAQ finished in the green. Among the megacaps, Apple gained 2.8%, Nvidia gained 3.5% and Microsoft gained 1.9%. Likewise, Oracle shares rose 13.3% to an all-time high following the announcement of new cloud deals with Google and OpenAI. Thus, the DOW JONES -0.09%, the S&P 500 +0.85% and the NASDAQ +1.53% ended with mostly positive performances.

Europe:

The main European indices ended the session with positive returns, driven by U.S. inflation figures, which turned out to be lower than expected. This generated expectations that the Fed might make its first rate cut as early as September. The industrial and technology sectors led the gains, while automotive sector stocks suffered losses, affected by numerous lawsuits against car manufacturers in Britain for alleged violations. Corporately, Schneider Electric, SAP, and ASML saw increases. The English market, reflected in the FTSE 100, ended with gains thanks to new data suggesting possible interest rate cuts. In the UK, the economy stagnated in April 2024 as predicted, while industrial production and construction fell more than expected, which could allow the Bank of England to ease monetary policy by the end of the summer. In business news, Rentokil shares rose more than 10% following the news that Trian Fund Management, owned by activist investor Nelson Peltz, acquired a stake in the company. Similarly, the German market closed on a positive note due to U.S. inflation data. At the start of the session, the DAX also showed recovery after three days of losses, as concerns about the political situation in France eased after President Macron confirmed that he would not resign regardless of the legislative election results. In corporate news, Siemens Energy, Bayer, and Novovia were the companies with the highest gains. The main index of the Paris Stock Exchange, CAC 40, ended positively, following the trend of global markets. This increase is due to a lower-than-expected U.S. inflation report. Now, attention is focused on the outcome of the Federal Reserve's two-day meeting. In France, President Macron ruled out his resignation, alleviating concerns about political instability. In business news, Schneider Electric, STMicroelectronics, and Legrand led the gains. Thus, FTSE 100 +0.83%; CAC 40 +0.97%; DAX +1.42%; STOXX 600 +1.08% ended with positive returns.

Asia:

The main Asian indices closed with mixed returns. The Chinese market ended the session with slight gains. This modest rise occurred after lower-than-expected inflation figures in China, raising hopes for greater policy support. Investors remained cautious ahead of the U.S. inflation report and the Fed's rate decision. The South Korean market, measured by the Kospi index, closed with gains driven by technology stocks before the U.S. CPI report and the Fed's rate decision. In Korea, the Bank of Korea showed caution in easing monetary policy due to uncertainty about price pressures. In Hong Kong, the Hang Seng index closed in the red due to concerns about weak demand in China and persistent producer price deflation. Uncertainty over the upcoming U.S. inflation report and the Fed's rate decision also affected the market. Additionally, potential U.S. restrictions on chip technology and EU tariffs on Chinese cars contributed to losses in major stocks. In Japan, the Nikkei index closed with losses due to higher-than-expected Japanese producer inflation figures, raising concerns about increased consumer inflation. Caution prevailed before the Bank of Japan's policy decision and the U.S. inflation report, along with the Fed's rate decision. All sectors experienced declines, with notable losses in Mitsubishi UFJ, Nippon Tel, Toyota Motor, Kawasaki Kisen, and Fast Retailing. In the Australian market, returns were negative, with miners and financials leading the decline due to concerns about U.S. inflation and economic weakness in China. Losses in key sectors contrasted with advances in energy, highlighting Woodside Energy (+2.7%) and Judo Capital Holdings (+3.9%). In summary, NIKKEI -0.66%; HANG SENG -1.31%; CSI 300 +0.04%; S&P/ASX 200 -0.51%; KOSPI +0.84%; SHANGHAI COMPOSITE +0.31% ended with mixed returns.
