United States:

The US market does not operate on holidays.

Europe:

Major European indices ended the session with negative returns, while there was increased uncertainty about the continent's politics. The European Commission has officially reprimanded France, Italy and five other member countries for running fiscal deficits higher than allowed, which has negatively impacted their markets and increased the importance of the upcoming elections in these countries, as populist parties are questioning fiscal discretion. On the corporate side ASML was one of the day's top losers (-1.8%), and in the healthcare sector Sanofi and Bayer fell around 1.5%. The UK market, reflected in the FTSE 100, ended with gains. The index was little changed on Wednesday following the fall in inflation to the Bank of England's 2% target. Although this could support the case for future rate cuts, the Bank of England is expected to leave rates unchanged at tomorrow's meeting. Similarly, the German market closed negative after the markets continued with their assessment of the monetary bloc's policy. Trading volume was also light, as US markets remained closed for the June 1 holiday and no major economic data was released in European countries. Infineon was one of the session's laggards, down 3%, in line with its heavy losses in the European chip sector. The pharmaceutical sector also fell, with Merck and Bayer giving up 3.2% and 2%, respectively. The Paris Stock Exchange's main index, CAC 40, ended negative, under pressure from losses in the technology sector and continuing political problems. Also, the European Commission issued a reprimand to France for its fiscal deficit, reactivating fiscal rules suspended since the COVID-19 pandemic and increasing pressure to comply with fiscal consolidation. In terms of stocks, STMicroelectronics led the decliners with a 4.7% drop in its shares, followed by Dassault Systèmes (-3.2%). Thus, FTSE 100 +0.17%; CAC 40 -0.77%; DAX -0.35%; STOXX X 600 -0.17% ended with negative performances.

Asia:

The main Asian indices closed with mixed performances. The Chinese market ended the session with slight losses, reversing earlier gains due to a lack of new catalysts and awaiting decisions on main lending rates from the People's Bank of China. In the South Korean market measured by the Kospi index, it closed with gains. The momentum was led by battery and biotech stocks, with LG Energy Solution standing out with a 3.6% rise, while Samsung SDI and SK Innovation rose 4.7% and 1.6%, respectively. In the biotech sector, Samsung Biologics (2%) and Celltrion (2.4%) led the gains. Hyundai Motors also grew 1.2%, extending its recovery following the announcement to list its unit in India. In Hong Kong, the Hang Seng Index closed in green. This advance was driven by solid gains in all sectors, including technology with an increase of 3.7%, with Nvidia Corp. standing out as the most valuable company in the world. In Japan, the Nikkei index closed with gains. Investors welcomed data showing growth in Japanese exports in May, boosted by a weak yen and robust external demand. Despite a private survey indicating a decline in sentiment among Japanese manufacturers due to concerns about higher costs of materials and imports, Japanese stocks also followed Wall Street's gains, boosted by strong performance from Nvidia, which converted to the most valuable artificial intelligence chip company in the world. In the Australian market, returns were negative. RBA Governor Michele Bullock mentioned that the need to raise interest rates was discussed at the June meeting, while a rate cut was not considered. Expectations of interest rate cuts from the RBA dropped from 64% at the start of the week to just 36% currently, with the possibility of a reduction not seen until April next year. In summary, NIKKEI +0.23%; HANG SENG +2.87%; CSI 300 -0.47%; S&P/ASX 200 -0.11%; KOSPI +1.21%; SHANGHAI COMPOSITE -0.87% ended with mixed returns.
