WORLD

United States:

The U.S. market closed with positive returns. The DOW JONES ended in the green, recovering from last week's steep losses as investors took advantage of lower prices and anticipated a possible interest rate cut from the Federal Reserve. The S&P 500 also closed in the green, snapping a five-day losing streak after suffering its worst week since early 2023. Sectors such as consumer discretionary, industrials, and financial stocks led the recovery, along with tech stocks, which had been among the hardest hit during last week's selloff. Finally, the NASDAQ index finished the day in the green as traders shifted their focus to upcoming inflation data, which will provide crucial clues on the Fed's policy decision later this month. Investors are debating whether the central bank will cut rates by 25 or 50 basis points following last week's mixed jobs report. Companies like JP Morgan Chase, Mastercard, Boeing, and Tesla were among the session's top performers, gaining over 2% each. Thus, DOW JONES +1.20%, S&P 500 +1.16%, NASDAQ +1.16%, with the market posting positive returns.

Europe:

The main European indices closed with mixed performances. The pan-European STOXX 600 index closed with negative returns. The day-on-day rebound was led by the technology sector, which followed the gains of its US peers in Friday's session, as investors expect this week's strong ISM PMI results and Friday's employment report to consolidate bets that the Federal Reserve will achieve a soft landing. In the U.K. market, the FTSE index closed with negative returns. On the domestic macro front, a survey released earlier confirmed that UK manufacturing activity grew in August at its fastest pace in more than two years. Among individual stocks, RWE was the top gainer, up nearly 30% after Australia's REA Group confirmed it is considering a bid. In the French market, the session closed with positive returns. Leading the gains, Sanofi rose 3.6% following a positive update on its ongoing trials for potential multiple sclerosis treatments. Other notable stocks were Orange and Unibail-Rodamco-Westfield, which advanced 1.7% and 2.2%, respectively. On the economic front, France's manufacturing PMI was revised slightly upward to 43.9 in August 2024, but remained at its largest contraction since January. The German market, as measured by the DAX index closed in the red. Automakers were among the biggest losers, as pessimistic Chinese PMIs underscored the decline in demand in the key market for German cars, with Porsche, Mercedes, BMW and Volkswagen falling between 1.25% and 0.4%. The industrial sector was also down, with Daimler and Rheinmetall shares falling by more than 1% each. Thus, FTSE -0.15%; CAC 40 +0.20%; DAX +0.13%; STOXX 600 -0.02% closed with mixed performances.

Asia:

Major Asian indices closed with negative returns. The Chinese market closed negative as weak Chinese inflation data exacerbated concerns about the economy. Data showed that the country's consumer inflation rose less than expected in August, while producer deflation has persisted for the 23rd consecutive month amid weak demand conditions. Elsewhere, the Hang Seng index is in negative territory amid growing concerns about China's economic recovery. Investors were also nervous ahead of Tuesday's Chinese commodity data. Still, a sharp rise in U.S. futures stemmed the decline, due to the prospect of global monetary policy easing, particularly by the U.S. Federal Reserve and the ECB. The South Korean market ended negative after weak U.S. payroll data raised concerns about the health of the world's largest economy. Investors are awaiting this week's U.S. inflation data, which could provide crucial information ahead of the Federal Reserve's interest rate decision this month and potentially affect the outlook for global monetary policy. The Japanese market also closed lower after the Japanese economy grew by an annualized 2.9% in the second quarter, below the advance figure of 3.1% and the consensus forecast of 3.2%. Still, solid growth, rising wages and persistent inflationary pressures continued to support bets that the Bank of Japan will continue to raise interest rates. The Australian market ended negative, where falling commodity prices also weighed on the stock market, where natural resources are abundant. In addition, investors continued to assess the outlook for domestic monetary policy after Reserve Bank of Australia Governor Michele Bullock indicated that inflation remains too high. Thus, NIKKEI -0.48%; HANG SENG -1.42%; CSI 300 -1.19%; S&P/ASX 200 -0.32%; KOSPI -0.33%, SHANGHAI COMPOSITE -1.06% ended with negative returns.
