United States:

The U.S. market closed with positive returns. The DOW JONES closed in the green, boosted by growing expectations of a larger interest rate cut at the next Federal Reserve meeting. The S&P 500 index finished in the green. Technology and semiconductor majors led the rally, with Super Micro Computer and ARM Holdings rising 3.4% and 6.9%, respectively. Microsoft rose 0.8%, Google gained 1.8%, and Uber soared 6.4%. In contrast, Boeing shares fell 3.7% after the company's largest union went on strike, disrupting aircraft production at several factories. Finally, the NASDAQ index ended the day in the green. Investors are increasingly betting on a 50 basis point rate cut by the Fed, with the probability jumping to 47% from 15% earlier in the week, driven by the latest inflation and employment data. Thus, DOW JONES +0.72%, S&P 500 +0.54% and NASDAQ +0.65% ended with positive results.

Europe:

The main European indices ended the session with positive returns. The pan-European STOXX 600 closed higher as investors reacted to the recent interest rate cut by the European Central Bank (ECB) and looked ahead to next week's Federal Reserve meeting. Most stock markets and sectors closed in positive territory, with retail stocks leading the way, up 1.8%, followed by the automotive sector with a 1.6% gain. The UK market, represented by the FTSE 100, closed positively, marking its second consecutive session of advances. Investors focused on next week's central bank announcements, including those from the Federal Reserve and the Bank of England. The German market closed higher, with investors focusing on the monetary policy outlook after the ECB's rate cut and ahead of the expected Federal Reserve decision next week. Among the leading companies, SAP, Deutsche Telekom, and Allianz posted gains between 0.5% and 1%, while Siemens slipped slightly and Airbus remained flat. The French market, represented by the CAC 40, also closed with gains. Domestically, France's inflation rate was revised down to 1.8% for August, from an initial estimate of 1.9%, marking its lowest level since July 2021. Among the CAC 40 constituents, Renault led with a 2.4% increase, while AXA, Vinci, and Dassault Systèmes each rose by 1.2%. Thus, FTSE 100 +0.39%; CAC 40 +0.41%; DAX +0.98%; STOXX 600 +0.76% all ended with positive returns.

Asia:

Major Asian indices closed with mixed performances. The Chinese market closed negative as investors reduced their positions ahead of a long holiday. Chinese markets will remain closed on Monday and Tuesday for the Mid-Autumn Festival. Meanwhile, President Xi Jinping said Thursday that China should "strive to meet economic and social development goals" by 2024. However, analysts noted that he had downgraded the emphasis on achieving the full-year GDP target, after several investment banks predicted that China could miss its target due to growing headwinds at home. In the Hong Kong market, the Hang Seng index ended higher, with gains across the board, as the U.S. Federal Reserve is expected to cut rates next week. Meanwhile, Huawei is preparing to cut rates more than $5 trillion in outstanding mortgages, possibly as early as this month. The South Korean market ended on a positive note, with gains in auto and financial stocks offset by heavy losses in chipmakers. Hyundai Motors advanced 2.1% following collaboration talks with GM on joint development of vehicles and clean energy technology, boosting subsidiaries such as Hyundai Mobis, Hyundai Kia and sister company Kia Corp, which gained 1.4%. Japanese markets closed lower as the yen strengthened following signs of strength from the Bank of Japan, pressuring equity issues. Bank of Japan board member Naoki Tamura said Thursday that the central bank must raise short-term rates to at least around 1% until fiscal 2026 to steadily reach the 2% inflation target. The Australian market ended higher, with mining and energy stocks leading the way amid rising iron ore, gold and oil prices. Iron ore miners led the gains, such as BHP Group (2.1%), Fortescue (4.8%) and Rio Tinto (1%). Thus, NIKKEI -0.68%; HANG SENG +0.75%; CSI 300 -0.42%; S&P/ASX 200 -0.30%; KOSPI +0.13%; SHANGHAI COMPOSITE -0.48% ended with mixed performances.
