WORLD

United States:

The US market closed slightly positive. The DOW JONES index closed positive, after escalating geopolitical risks dampened the optimism that had emerged around potential U.S. interest rate cuts. Meanwhile, economic data showed stronger-than-expected job growth, with 143,000 private sector jobs in September. The S&P 500 index closed in positive territory as investors await Friday's jobs report for more data on the economy and the Federal Reserve's interest rate decisions. Finally, the NASDAQ ended slightly in the green, with Nike shares falling 6.8% after withdrawing its full-year outlook, and Tesla down 3.5% following weaker-than-expected deliveries, although Nvidia (+1.6%) helped support tech stocks with gains. Thus, the DOW JONES +0.09%, the S&P 500 +0.09%, and the NASDAQ +0.08% ended with slightly positive returns.

Europe:

The main European indices closed with negative returns, maintaining previous losses due to the increasing geopolitical tension that led investors to avoid riskier assets. Following an Iranian ballistic missile attack on Israel, oil prices rose, benefiting TotalEnergies (+2.3%) and Eni (+1.7%). The technology sector also performed well, with ASML up more than 2% and Prosus up 3%. The UK market, reflected in the FTSE 100, closed higher, driven mainly by energy stocks. Oil prices rose by more than 2% due to tensions between Iran and Israel, which benefited companies such as BP and Shell. Topps Tiles reported lower sales due to adverse market conditions. Finally, AO World announced the acquisition of musicMagpie for 9.98 million pounds. Similarly, the German market closed in slightly negative territory in an environment of caution in Europe due to tensions between Iran and Israel. Eon, Porsche, Sartorius and Airbus each fell by more than 1%. Finally, the main index of the Paris Stock Exchange closed in positive territory. TotalEnergies led the increase with 2.2% due to the rise in oil prices due to tensions in the Middle East. Luxury stocks also recovered from earlier losses, with LVMH, Hermès and L'Oréal up between 0.3% and 0.7%. Thus, FTSE 100 +0.17%; CAC 40 +0.05%; DAX -0.25%; STOXX X 600 +0.05% ended with negative returns.

Asia:

The main Asian indices closed with negative returns. The Chinese market remained closed due to the celebration of the National Holiday. On the other hand, the Hang Seng Index is in positive territory, reaching its highest level since early February 2023 amid optimism around China's GDP growth in 2024 after Beijing launched a broad policy measure last week, including interest rate cuts, cash release for banks and liquidity support for stocks. Solid gains were recorded across all sectors, with gains of 8% and 7%, respectively, in technology and real estate. The South Korean market closed negative. Domestically, the S&P PMI indicated a further contraction in the South Korean manufacturing sector, falling to 48.3, marking the first contraction in five months and the steepest decline since June 2023. Meanwhile, the country's inflation fell in September to a three-and-a-half-year low of 1.6%, fueling expectations of possible rate cuts by the Bank of Korea. In Japan, the Nikkei index closed with losses. On the monetary policy front, newly appointed Finance Minister Ryosel Akazawa said the central bank should be cautious about raising rates again, as it takes time to fully emerge from deflation. Technology stocks led the decline, with heavy losses for Lattice (-4.8%), Disco (-5%), Tokyo Electron (-3.7%), Advantest (-4.9%) and SoftBank Group (-2.4%). The Australian market ended its session in negative territory. Notable losses were recorded in index heavyweights such as Macquarie Group (-1%), Qantas Airways (-2.7%), Woolworths Group (-1.5%), Wisetech Global (-1.7%) and Wesfarmers (-2.3%). Energy stocks, meanwhile, advanced on higher oil prices due to supply risks in the Middle East, with sector leaders Woods Ide Energy and Santos gaining 3.1% and 2.4%, respectively. In summary, NIKKEI -2.18%; HANG SENG +6.20%; CSI 300 -0.13%; S&P/ASX 200 -0.13%; KOSPI -1.22%; SHANGHAI COMPOSITE -9.06% ended with negative returns.
