United States:

The US market closed with positive returns. The DOW JONES closed in the green, boosted by strong results from major banks, setting an optimistic tone for the third quarter earnings season. Top gainers included JPMorgan and Wells Fargo with 4.4% and 5.6% respectively. The S&P 500 index finished in the green, despite Tesla's 8.8% decline due to its disappointing robotaxi event. Positive momentum was supported by economic data, where unchanged wholesale inflation indicated progress towards controlling inflation, while rising inflation on Wednesday kept uncertainty surrounding future Fed rate cuts. Finally, the NASDAQ index ended the day in the green. In September, producer prices were unchanged from the previous month, in line with market expectations, but consumer confidence, as measured by the University of Michigan, fell short of consensus. Thus, DOW JONES +0.97%, S&P 500 +0.61% and NASDAQ +0.33% ended with positive results.

Europe:

The main European indices ended the session with positive performances. The pan-European STOXX 600 closed higher, supported by a favorable start to the earnings season in the United States, while investors assessed a series of economic data. The UK market, reflected in the FTSE 100, closed in the green, as according to data from the Office for National Statistics (ONS), services grew by 0.1% in August, production increased by 0.5%, and construction also grew by 0.4%, while wholesale and the oil sector experienced declines. The German market closed higher, tracking gains from its European peers, as traders continued to digest a hotter-than-expected inflation print in the US and awaited updates on Chinese stimulus over the weekend. The Frenchmarket, reflected in the CAC 40, closed with gains as investors assessed France's newly proposed 2025 budget, which includes tax hikes on large corporations to address its growing deficit. Additionally, traders were awaiting the press conference from China's Ministry of Finance on Saturday, with high expectations for potential stimulus measures. As a result, the FTSE 100 +0.19%; CAC 40 +0.48%; DAX +0.85%; STOXX 600 +0.55% all ended with positive returns.

Asia:

Major Asian indices closed with mixed performances. The Chinese market closed negative on profit-taking and concerns about the effectiveness of monetary stimulus measures to boost growth. Investors were also cautiously awaiting the announcement of further stimulus measures at a press conference by the Ministry of Finance on Saturday. In the Hong Kong market, the Hang Seng index remained unchanged due to Chung Yeung Day. The South Korean market ended negative following the Bank of Korea's expected decision to cut its interest rate for the first time in four years. The BOK cut its prime rate by 25 basis points to 3.25%, joining other regional banks in the easing cycle. However, BOK Governor Rhee Chang-yong described the move as a "hard-line cut," noting that the central bank is expected to proceed cautiously with further easing of borrowing costs due to property price constraints and rising household debt. The Japanese market closed higher, reaching its highest level in two weeks. These moves came even after Wall Street fell overnight following better-than-expected inflation data and disappointing U.S. jobless claims numbers. Recent yen weakness also helped Japanese equities amid expectations that the Bank of Japan will delay further rate hikes, while the Federal Reserve may skip a rate cut in the coming months. Australian markets finished lower, following losses on Wall Street overnight, after better-than-expected inflation data and disappointing U.S. jobless claims numbers. Losses in the mining sector were led by BHP Group (-1.1%), Fortescue (-1.3%) and Rio Tinto (-0.2%). Thus, NIKKEI +0.57%; HANG SENG +%; CSI 300 -2.77%; S&P/ASX 200 -0.10%; KOSPI -0.09%, SHANGHAI COMPOSITE -2.55% ended with mixed performances.
