WORLD

United States:

The US market closed with negative results. The DOW JONES index closed with a negative result, as investors processed another round of corporate earnings and awaited the results of large technology companies amid signs of a cooling economy. The S&P 500 index closed in negative territory, where chipmakers came under pressure: Nvidia was down 0.9%, AMD plunged 10.6% on weak forecasts and Super Micro Computer plunged 32.7% - its worst day in more than six years - following the sudden resignation of its auditor. Finally, the NASDAQ finished in the red after Alphabet (+2.8%) boosted sentiment with strong cloud growth, fueling optimism ahead of reports from Meta (+0.2%), Microsoft (+0.1%), Apple (-1.5%) and Amazon (+1%). Economic data revealed that GDP growth slowed to an annualized 2.8% in Q3, slightly below estimates, while strength in the labor market dampened hopes for Fed rate cuts, leaving investors cautious as more key earnings reports approach. Thus, DOW JONES -0.22%, S&P 500 -0.33%, NASDAQ -0.56% with the market holding negative yields.

Europe:

The main European indices closed with negative performances given the poor results of large Eurozone companies. On the corporate front ASML plunged 5.1% following a disappointing sales forecast, and LVMH fell 3.7% due to a drop in revenues, the first since the pandemic, reflecting weaker demand in China. In addition, Hermes, Kering and L'Oreal also recorded declines following a negative report from JPMorgan. The UK market, reflected in the FTSE 100, closed higher on lower-than-expected UK inflation, raising the possibility of rate cuts by the Bank of England. In addition, inflation fell to 1.7% in September, below the 1.9% forecast, marking the first time in more than three years that it has fallen below the 2% target. On the other hand, the pound fell below 1.30 USD, and the yield on the 10-year bond declined. Rate-sensitive sectors, such as construction, real estate and banks, rose, while insurers fell more than 2% following a financial market review. Similarly, the German market closed in negative territory, while caution was evident in the European market in the face of new corporate results. The most affected sectors were luxury and technology, including LVMH and ASML. Finally, the main index of the Paris Stock Exchange closed in negative territory, due to falls in the luxury sector. On the corporate side, LVMH led the decline with a 3.7% plunge after reporting a 3% drop in its third quarter sales. In addition, the market awaits the ECB's monetary policy decision, anticipating a 25 basis point cut. Thus, FTSE 100 +0.97; CAC 40 -0.40%; DAX -0.27%; STOXX X 600 -0.19% ended with positive performances.

Asia:

Major Asian indices closed with negative returns. The Chinese market closed negative as investors cautiously await the latest PMI reports to assess the impact of recent stimulus measures. Traders are also looking ahead to the upcoming National People's Congress, scheduled for November 4-8, and expect announcements on debt and other fiscal initiatives. Media reports suggest that China is considering a package of more than 10 trillion yuan to revive the economy. In the Hong Kong market, the Hang Seng index ended lower. A meeting of senior legislative branch officials next week could shed light on China's planned fiscal stimulus. Electric vehicle manufacturers such as NIO (-7.0%), Xpeng (-4.5%) and Geely Auto (-3.1%) suffered heavy losses as the EU imposed tariffs of up to 45.3% on electric vehicles made in China, effective today. The South Korean market closed in the negative. Among healthcare companies, Samsung Biologics plunged 1.6%, while Celltrion and Altonogen fell 0.8% and 1.7%, respectively. In addition, financial stocks came under pressure, with declines in KB Financial (-1.8%), Shinhan Financial (-4.1%) and Hana Financial (-3.5%), despite posting an increase in net income in the third quarter. In Japan, the Nikkei index closed with gains. Technology stocks drove the rally, benefiting from strong quarterly earnings reports from major U.S. technology companies, which boosted investor sentiment. Highlights included Disco, up 11.2%, followed by Lasertec, up 4.4%, Hitachi, up 2.3%, Advantest, up 3.4%, and Recruit Holdings, up 1.5%. The Australian market ended its session in negative territory. On the economic front, the latest data indicated that Australian inflation slowed more than expected, reinforcing a pessimistic outlook for the Reserve Bank of Australia's monetary policy. In summary, NIKKEI +0.96%; HANG SENG -1.55%; CSI 300 -0.90%; S&P/ASX 200 -0.83%; KOSPI -0.92%; SHANGHAI COMPOSITE -0.61% ended with negative returns.
