WORLD

United States:

The DOW JONES index closed flat after the central bank signaled that labor market conditions are easing across the board, while inflation is trending lower, despite remaining elevated, justifying looser financial conditions. Banks and financial services providers posted heavy losses that led the Dow to underperform by hovering slightly above the flat line, with JPMorgan, American Express and Goldman Sachs falling between 5% and 2.3%. The S&P 500 index closed in negative territory, following a rally in tech stocks such as TSCM and Meta soaring 4%, while Nvidia, Apple and Alphabet rose more than 1.5%. On the other hand, US stock markets remained generally positive following the previous session's presidential election-driven rally after the Federal Reserve implemented a 25 basis point rate cut, as expected. Finally, the NASDAQ ended in the green, relative to the assessments of investors, who continued to analyze the impact that the economic policies of Trump's next term in office may have on the sector, including higher fiscal deficits and less regulation. Thus, DOW JONES +0.00%, S&P 500 +0.74%, NASDAQ +1.51% with the market having positive returns.

Europe:

Major European indices ended the session with positive returns. The pan-European STOXX 600 index closed higher on Thursday. On the corporate front, luxury and technology giants posted strong gains to trim the previous session's sell-off. LVMH, Hermes and SAP rose more than 3%. Munich Re, meanwhile, closed up 0.3% after raising its insurance revenue forecast for the year. The British market, reflected in the FTSE 100, closed with negative results, after the Bank of England cut interest rates to 4.75%, as expected, but projected higher inflation and economic growth following the new government's budget. The German market, reflected in the DAX index, closed in positive territory. The automotive sector recovered from the strong setback suffered on Wednesday, specifically Mercedes-Benz (2.8%), BMW (2.9%), Porsche (4.2%) and VW (1.7%). At the same time, corporate results boosted investor sentiment. Daimler Truck rose by almost 5% after maintaining its forecasts. The French market closed the session in positive territory. Luxury giants LVMH, Hermes and Kering led the rally, with gains of between 2.6% and 4.1%, as the outlook for luxury goods demand improved, boosted by expectations of a U.S. Federal Reserve interest rate cut and ongoing discussions in China's National People's Congress on increasing local government debt. Thus, FTSE 100 -0.32%, CAC 40 +0.76%, DAX +1.70%, STOXX 600 +1.07% ended with positive returns.

Asia:

The main Asian indices closed with mixed performances. The Chinese market closed in the green, breaking a two-day losing streak, driven by strong manufacturing data that boosted market sentiment. A report from the National Bureau of Statistics (NBS) indicated that factory activity in China entered expansion territory in October for the first time since April, fueled by improved demand conditions. On the other hand, in the Hong Kong market, the Hang Seng index ended with losses, marking its second consecutive session of declines due to drops in tech and consumer stocks. A slump in U.S. futures dampened market sentiment ahead of the release of PCE inflation data and the October employment report. The South Korean market closed in the red, reaching its lowest level in seven weeks as nearly all sectors posted losses. This decline followed a weak performance on Wall Street, where major U.S. tech companies faced significant pressure. In Japan, the Nikkei index closed lower, ending a three-day winning streak, as Japanese markets mirrored Wall Street's losses. The downturn was driven by declines in chip stocks and disappointing earnings from major U.S. tech companies. The Australian market also closed in red, extending losses from the previous session, amid weak performance on Wall Street, where major U.S. tech companies faced significant pressure. A mixed quarterly inflation report in Australia also reduced expectations for an immediate rate cut by the Reserve Bank of Australia, adding further pressure on stocks. Thus, NIKKEI -0.50%, HANG SENG -0.31%, CSI 300 +0.04%; S&P/ASX 200 -0.98%; KOSPI -1.45%, SHANGHAI COMPOSITE +0.42% ended with mixed performances.
