Global Overview

United States:

The US market ended the day with negative results due to political uncertainty, which is on the rise after President Trump's threat to close the government if he does not receive funding for the wall along the United States, of pressing the congress. In addition, the market received a slight boost in the trade sector after House Speaker Paul Ryan expressed confidence in approving the tax reform this year and raising debt levels. On the other hand, today begins the meeting of central bankers in Jackson Hole. With the presence of Mario Draghi one of the most anticipated after two years of absence, although it is not expected to announce any major change, however, the appreciation of the euro, low inflation and signs of economic growth call into question the withdrawal of monetary stimuli. On the side of Fed Chairman Janet Yellen, she will announce the non-trade positions of oil, dollar and gold in the short and medium term. Finally, the price of gold fell -0.3% to $ 1286.11 an ounce and in the case of oil its prices fell around -1.63%, trading at $ 47.62 a barrel.

Europe:

The European stock market closed the day with positive results among its main indexes, with the exception of the French benchmark CAC 40. Although, in August, confidence in the French manufacturing sector rose to a high of almost 10 years according to a Report from the national statistics agency Insee. The reading reached 111 in this month, passing the 108 in July. This indicates that the French economy could maintain the momentum it recovered in the first half of the year. On the other hand, European stocks recorded lower gains for today. Investors are more cautious about today's meeting in Jackson Hole, where all the central bankers from all over the world gather. The Central Bank summit begins on Thursday and continues until Saturday. Central day will be on Friday, as that day will speak Mario Draghi, the president of the European Central Bank and Janet Yellen, the president of the Federal Reserve, markets will look for signs of any change in monetary policy, Rebecca O'Keefe, the chief investment officer of Interactive Investor, said that "while this meeting is unlikely to lead to major policy decisions, it remains important to investors because of the role central banks play in market valuations." Turning to economic data, growth in the UK was 0.3% for the second quarter, according to estimates by the National Bureau of Statistics of the country's gross domestic product.

Asia:

The Asian stock market ended today's session with mixed results among its main indexes. Among the news highlights, China's State Council said in a statement that the Chinese government plans to expand its consumption scale in information technology products and services by 11% a year, to the equivalent of 900 Billion by 2020. The purpose of this measure is to both support economic growth and promote innovation. In addition, thanks to higher gains from higher global oil prices, PetroChina Co. (China's largest oil producer) rewarded investors with nearly 1.9 billion dollars in dividends. Regarding Japan, its shares fell for the first time in three days because Toyota Motor Corp. reported price cuts. This caused steelmakers to back down, resulting in a fall in Tokyo's Topix benchmark. On the other hand, in the Indian market, the shares finished with a second advance in the week, driven by the earnings of software exporters and pharmaceutical companies. Because of this, the benchmark indices NSE Nifty 50 and S&P BSE Sensex increased by 0.1%.
