Global Overview

United States:

The US stock market ended the day with positive results. The S & P 500 had risen more than 0.5%, however, it lost much of that profit after the special lawyer of the United States, Robert Mueller, said that the Federal Jury accused 13 Russian citizens and three Russian entities of interfering with the elections and the political processes of the United States. On the other hand, a correction in the market triggered by inflation concerns in early February raised fears that a nine-year bull market was over, but data on consumer prices and retail sales this week left investors less worried. In more detail, signs that the economy is growing, but are not in danger of overheating, helped stocks move forward this week and ease the bite of last week's losses. However, a reading of January import prices showed a monthly increase of 1%, another sign that sometimes moderate inflationary pressures are accumulating. Data from the previous week showed an increase in consumer price inflation, which is seen as a barometer of Federal Reserve interest rate plans.

Europe:

The European stock market ended today with positive results among its main indices, showing the highest weekly gain (+ 3.3%) since December 2016. The European index Stoxx 600 (SXPP) rose + 1.09%, it should be noted that all the sectors showed positive returns in the day, highlighting the telecommunications and medical care sector. In the case of the German index DAX 30 rose by + 0.86%, the French CAC 40, + 1.13% and the British FTSE 100, by + 0.83%. UK stocks closed Friday with their best performance in 14 months, despite the UK government reporting a slower-than-expected slowdown in retail sales last month. With respect to the Euro, it went from $1.2507 to $1.2434 late Thursday in New York; while the pound sterling depreciated against the dollar from buying $ 1.4100 to $ 1.4060 late Thursday in New York. In the fixed income market, the yield of the German 10-year bond TMBMKDE10Y fell by -7.28%. Among the main values, Royal Vopak NV, had a gain of + 13.73%. After it will show an increase in its adjusted net profit for the fourth quarter, the French music company Vivendi SA DOWN -6.04% despite reporting higher profits of the fourth quarter, meanwhile Electricite de France SA rose + 4.64%, after presenting higher profits.

Asia:

The Asian stock market closed with positive results among its main indices, except for the Chinese indexes that are on vacation for the Lunar New Year. Japanese stocks gained today despite an appreciation of the yen against the dollar. Technological stocks were among the most winning, companies like Kyocera and Sony won more than 1%. Also, automakers also won today, among the most winning companies are Honda Motors and Toyota Motors earning close to + 1% each. On the other hand, the strength of the yen against the dollar prompted a response from Japanese Finance Minister Taro Aso. "The stability of exchange rates is important, and there is no change in the government's position that it will take appropriate measures at the appropriate time, if necessary," he said. A strong yen is worrisome because it could derail Japan's export-led economic expansion, which is currently still in its 28-year-long growth stretch. However, growth slowed by 0.5% in the fourth quarter of 2017, down from 2.2% in the third quarter, a potentially worrisome decline. "Meanwhile, global capital flows are propping up the yen against its rivals, which is a counterbalance to the long-term position of the lax central bank's monetary policy," said RBC's chief currency strategist, Adam Cole.
