Global Overview:

United States:

The US stock market closed the session with negative results among its main indices due to the global nervousness that generated the fall of the Turkish currency (40% against the dollar so far this year). The S&P 500, the DJIA and the Nasdaq Comp fell -0.40%, -0.50% and -0.25% respectively, being the fourth consecutive fall for the first two. Of the first only the public services sector maintained a positive intraday return of +0.12%, while the rest of sectors closed with negative returns, of which the energy sector (-1.19%) and the basic materials (-1.05%) stood out. Likewise, companies in the financial sector such as Citigroup (-1.57%), Bank of America Corp (-2.28%), Wells Fargo & Co (-0.76%) and JP Morgan & Co (-1.59%) were hit hard by the Turkish crisis. On the other hand, Apple and Amazon reached record historical levels, currently trading at $ 208.87 and $ 1896.20. Among the main business movements of the day was Nielsen Holding PLC (+12.06%), which rose after the activist hedge fund Elliott Management revealed that it had taken a stake in the media and consumer research company and Sysco Corp (+6.24 %), while the biggest losers were Lennar Corp (-4.87%) and Harley-Davidson Inc (-4.32%), which fell after President Donald Trump publicly tweeted a boycott against the company.

Europe:

The European market ended the first day of the week with negative returns, mainly due to the worsening Turkish crisis over the weekend. On Friday, the United States announced that it would double the tariffs for aluminum and steel, and although the Central Bank of Turkey made moves to provide liquidity to the banks, they failed to alleviate the problems. This contributed to the accelerated depreciation of the Turkish lira, which endangers those who are indebted in dollars, making their debt almost impossible to pay. An increase in interest rates would help to curb inflation and depreciation, however, remain reluctant to measure. At the close of the day, the lira maintained a loss of 83% so far this year. Negative yields affected the region, where the Stoxx Europe 600 ended -0.25% and in the United Kingdom, the FTSE100 closed at -0.32%. In business news, the German Bayer fell -10.51% after it entered a lawsuit for more than $289 million to one of its subsidiaries, claiming that its herbicide products are carcinogenic. Finally, the DAX30 of Germany ended the day with a loss of -0.53%.

Asia:

The Asian market ended the day with negative returns among its main indices. The Shanghai Composite closed at 0.34% after Chinese stocks fell more than 1% due to a decline in real estate stocks as local banks refused to cut interest rates on mortgages. On the other hand, the Central Bank of China mentioned that they will not use a depreciation of the yuan as a measure to alleviate the commercial fights, which has fallen 4% in the last three months against the dollar. The Kospi finished at -1.50%, affected by big falls by Samsung (-0.77%) due to the poor reception of its new device, Galaxy S9. The Nikkei 225 fell -1.6%, which led the declines in the other indices, affected mainly by the actions of the exporters, being Toyota (-2.10%) and Canon (-2.45%) the hardest hit; while the Hang Seng fell 1.52%, being disadvantaged by the majority of its sectors being Public Services (-0.67%) and Finance (-1.19%). Among the most important news, Tesla Inc. Chief Executive Elon Musk mentioned that he is in discussions with Saudi Arabia's sovereign fund and other sponsors of his plan to privatize the electric car manufacturer but does not have secure financing, after publishing on twitter that he was privatizing the company at $ 420 a share and that the funds were "secured".
